

Fair Credit Reporting

Background

The Fair Credit Reporting Act (FCRA) deals with the rights of consumers in relation to their credit reports and the obligations of credit reporting agencies and the businesses that provide information to them. The FCRA has been revised numerous times since it took effect in 1971, notably by passage of the Consumer Credit Reporting Reform Act of 1996, the Gramm-Leach-Bliley Act of 1999, and the Fair and Accurate Credit Transactions Act of 2003 (FACT Act).

The FACT Act created new responsibilities for consumer reporting agencies and users of consumer reports, many concerning consumer disclosures and identity theft. It also created new rights for consumers, including the right to free annual consumer reports and improved access to report information, with the aim of making data in the consumer reporting system more accurate.

Coverage

Business entities that are consumer reporting agencies have significant responsibilities under the FCRA; business entities that are not consumer reporting agencies have somewhat lesser responsibilities. Generally, financial institutions are not considered consumer reporting agencies; however, those that engage in certain types of information-sharing practices can be deemed consumer reporting agencies. In addition, the FCRA applies to financial institutions that operate as

- Procurers and users of information (for example, when granting credit, purchasing dealer paper, or opening deposit accounts),
- Furnishers and transmitters of information (by reporting information to consumer reporting agencies or other third parties, or to affiliates),
- Marketers of credit or insurance products, or
- Employers.

Key Definitions

Key definitions used throughout the FCRA include the following:

Consumer

A consumer is an individual.

Consumer Report

A consumer report is any written, oral, or other communication of any information by a consumer reporting agency that bears on a consumer's creditworthiness, credit standing, credit capacity, character, general reputation, personal characteristics, or mode of living that is used (or is expected to be used) or collected in whole or in part for the purpose of serving as a factor in establishing the consumer's eligibility for

- Credit or insurance to be used primarily for personal, family, or household purposes;
- Employment purposes; or
- Any other purpose authorized under FCRA, section 604.

The term "consumer report" does not include

- Any report containing information solely about transactions or experiences between the consumer and the institution making the report;
- Any communication of that transaction or experience information among entities related by common ownership or affiliated by corporate control (for example, different banks that are members of the same holding company, or subsidiary companies of a bank);
- Communication of other information among persons related by common ownership or affiliated by corporate control if
  - It is clearly and conspicuously disclosed to the consumer that the information may be communicated among such persons, and
  - The consumer is given the opportunity, before the time the information is communicated, to direct that the information not be communicated among such persons;
- Any authorization or approval of a specific extension of credit directly or indirectly by the issuer of a credit card or similar device;
- Any report in which a person who has been requested by a third party to make a specific extension of credit directly or indirectly to a consumer (such as a lender who has received a request from a broker) conveys his or her decision with respect to such request, if the third party advises the consumer of the name and address of the person to whom the request was made, and such person makes the disclosures to the consumer required under FCRA, section 615; or

- A communication described in FCRA, subsection 603(o) or (x) (which relate to certain investigative reports and certain reports to prospective employers).

Person

A person is any individual, partnership, corporation, trust, estate, cooperative, association, government or governmental subdivision or agency, or other entity.

Investigative Consumer Report

An investigative consumer report is a consumer report or portion thereof for which information on a consumer's character, general reputation, personal characteristics, or mode of living is obtained through personal interviews with neighbors, friends, or associates of the consumer, or with others with whom the consumer is acquainted or who may have knowledge concerning any such information. However, such information does not include specific factual information on a consumer's credit record obtained directly from a creditor of the consumer or from a consumer reporting agency when such information was obtained directly from a creditor of the consumer or from the consumer.

Adverse Action

With regard to credit transactions, the term adverse action has the same meaning as used in section 701(d)(6) of the Equal Credit Opportunity Act (ECOA), Regulation B, and the official staff commentary. Under the ECOA, an "adverse action" is a denial or revocation of credit, a change in the terms of an existing credit arrangement, or a refusal to grant credit in substantially the same amount or on terms substantially similar to those requested. Under the ECOA, the term does not include a refusal to extend additional credit under an existing credit arrangement when the applicant is delinquent or otherwise in default, or when such additional credit would exceed a previously established credit limit.

For non-credit transactions, the term has the following additional meanings for purposes of the FCRA:

- A denial or cancellation of, an increase in any charge for, or a reduction or other adverse or unfavorable change in the terms of coverage or amount of any insurance, existing or applied for, in connection with the underwriting of insurance
- A denial of employment, or any other decision for employment purposes that adversely affects any current or prospective employee

- A denial or cancellation of, an increase in any charge for, or any other adverse or unfavorable change in the terms of any license or benefit described in FCRA, section 604(a)(3)(D)
- An action taken or determination that (1) is made in connection with an application made by, or transaction initiated by, any consumer, or in connection with a review of an account to determine whether the consumer continues to meet the terms of the account, and (2) is adverse to the interests of the consumer

Employment Purposes

A consumer report used for employment purposes is a report used for the purpose of evaluating a consumer for employment, promotion, reassignment, or retention as an employee.

Consumer Reporting Agency

A consumer reporting agency is any person that (1) for monetary fees, dues, or on a cooperative nonprofit basis regularly engages in whole or in part in the practice of assembling or evaluating consumer credit information, or other information on consumers, for the purpose of furnishing consumer reports to third parties, and (2) uses any means or facility of interstate commerce for the purpose of preparing or furnishing consumer reports.

Implementation of the FCRA

Some of the requirements for financial institutions imposed by the FCRA are written directly into the statute; others are contained in regulations issued jointly by the FFIEC agencies; still others are spelled out in regulations issued by the Federal Reserve Board and/or the Federal Trade Commission.

For examination purposes, similar requirements have been grouped together, creating a series of examination modules. The five modules that have been completed to date cover requirements applicable to financial institutions that are not consumer reporting agencies. A sixth module will cover institutions that are considered consumer reporting agencies. The five completed examination modules are listed below with the statutory or regulatory cites for the FCRA requirements they cover.<sup>1</sup>

The modules in this chapter contain both general information about each of the requirements and examination procedures. Preceding the modules are the objectives and initial procedures for fair credit reporting examinations.

Fair Credit Reporting Examination Objectives and Initial Examination Procedures

EXAMINATION OBJECTIVES

1. To determine the financial institution's compliance with the FCRA
2. To assess the quality of the financial institution's compliance management systems and its policies and procedures for implementing the FCRA
3. To determine the reliance that can be placed on the financial institution's internal controls and procedures for monitoring the institution's compliance with the FCRA
4. To direct corrective action when violations of law are identified or when policies or internal controls are deficient

INITIAL EXAMINATION PROCEDURES

The initial examination procedures are designed to acquaint examiners with the operations and processes of the institution being examined. They focus on the institution's systems, controls, policies, and procedures, including audits and previous examination findings.

The applicability of the various sections of the FCRA and the implementing regulations depends on an institution's unique operations. The functional examination requirements for an institution's FCRA responsibilities are presented topically in modules 1 through 6.

Initially, examiners should

1. Through discussions with management and a review of available information, determine whether the institution's internal controls are adequate to ensure compliance in the area under review. Consider the following:
  - a. Organization charts
  - b. Process flowcharts
  - c. Policies and procedures
  - d. Loan documentation
  - e. Checklists
  - f. Computer program documentation (for example, records that illustrate the fields and types of data reported to consumer reporting agencies, and automated records that track customer opt-outs for FCRA affiliate information sharing)
2. Review any compliance audit material, including workpapers and reports, to determine whether
  - a. The scope of the audit addresses all provisions as applicable;
  - b. Corrective actions were taken to follow up on previously identified deficiencies;
  - c. The testing includes samples covering all product types and decision centers;
  - d. The work performed is accurate;
  - e. Significant deficiencies and their causes are included in reports to management and/or to the board of directors; and
  - f. The frequency of review is appropriate.
3. Review the financial institution's training materials to determine whether
  - a. Appropriate training is provided to individuals responsible for FCRA compliance and operational procedures, and
  - b. The training is comprehensive and covers the various aspects of the FCRA that apply to the individual financial institution's operations.
4. Through discussions with management, determine which portions of the six examination modules will apply.
5. Complete appropriate examination modules; document and form conclusions regarding the quality of the financial institution's compliance management systems and compliance with the FCRA.

Examination Module 1: Obtaining Consumer Reports

Overview

Consumer reporting agencies have a significant amount of personal information about consumers. This information is invaluable in assessing a consumer's creditworthiness for a variety of products and services, including loan and deposit accounts, insurance, and telephone services. Access to this information is governed by the Fair Credit Reporting Act (FCRA) to ensure that it is obtained for permissible purposes and is not used for illegitimate purposes.

The FCRA requires any prospective "user" of a consumer report—for example a lender, insurer, landlord, or employer—to have a legally permissible purpose for obtaining a report.

Permissible Purposes of Consumer Reports (FCRA, Section 604) and Investigative Consumer Reports (FCRA, Section 606)

Legally Permissible Purposes

The FCRA allows a consumer reporting agency to furnish a consumer report under the following circumstances and no other:

- In response to a court order or federal grand jury subpoena
- In accordance with the written instructions of the consumer
- To a person, including a financial institution, that it has reason to believe
  - Intends to use the report in connection with a credit transaction involving the consumer (including extending, reviewing, and collecting credit);
  - Intends to use the information for employment purposes;<sup>2</sup>
  - Intends to use the information in connection with the underwriting of insurance involving the consumer;
  - Intends to use the information in connection with a determination of the consumer's eligibility for a license or other benefit granted by a governmental instrumentality that is required by law to consider an applicant's financial responsibility;

<sup>2</sup> Use of consumer reports for employment purposes requires specific advance authorization and disclosure notices and, if applicable, adverse action notices. These issues are addressed in module 3 of these examination procedures.

- Intends to use the information, as a potential investor or servicer or a current insurer, in connection with a valuation of, or an assessment of the credit or prepayment risks associated with, an existing credit obligation; or
- Otherwise has a legitimate business need for the information
  - a. In connection with a business transaction that is initiated by the consumer, or
  - b. To review an account to determine whether the consumer continues to meet the terms of the account
- In response to a request by the head of a state or local child support enforcement agency (or authorized appointee), if the person certifies various information to the consumer reporting agency regarding the need to obtain the report. (Generally, a financial institution that is not a consumer reporting agency is not involved in such a situation.)

Prescreened Consumer Reports

Users of consumer reports, such as financial institutions, are allowed to obtain prescreened consumer reports in order to make firm offers of credit or insurance to consumers, unless the consumers have elected to opt out of being included on prescreened lists. The FCRA contains many requirements, including an opt-out notice requirement, when prescreened consumer reports are used. In addition to defining prescreened consumer reports, module 3 covers these requirements.

Investigative Consumer Reports

FCRA, section 606, contains specific requirements concerning the use of investigative consumer reports. Such reports contain information about a consumer's character, general reputation, personal characteristics, or mode of living that is obtained in whole or in part through personal interviews with the consumer's neighbors, friends, or associates. If a financial institution procures an investigative consumer report, or causes one to be prepared, the institution must meet the following requirements:

- The institution must clearly and accurately disclose to the consumer that an investigative consumer report may be obtained.
- The disclosure must contain a statement of the consumer's right to request other information about the report and a summary of the consumer's rights under the FCRA.

- The disclosure must be in writing and must be mailed or otherwise delivered to the consumer not later than three business days after the date on which the report was first requested.
- The financial institution procuring the report must certify to the consumer reporting agency that it has complied with the disclosure requirements and will comply in the event that the consumer requests additional disclosures about the report.

able information and the growth of identity theft, financial institutions should manage the risks associated with obtaining and using consumer reports. They should employ procedures, controls, or other safeguards to ensure that consumer reports are obtained and used only in situations for which there are permissible purposes. Access to, storage of, and destruction of this information should be dealt with under an institution's information-security program; however, obtaining consumer reports initially must be done in compliance with the FCRA.

Examination Procedures

Permissible Purposes of Consumer Reports (FCRA, Section 604) and Investigative Consumer Reports (FCRA, Section 606)

1. Determine whether the financial institution obtains consumer reports.
2. Determine whether the financial institution obtains prescreened consumer reports and/or reports for employment purposes. If it does, complete the appropriate sections of module 3.
3. Determine whether the financial institution procures, or causes to be prepared, investigative consumer reports. If it does, determine whether the appropriate disclosure is given to consumers within the required time periods. In addition, determine whether the institution certifies compliance with the disclosure requirements to the consumer reporting agency.
4. Evaluate the financial institution's procedures to ensure that consumer reports are obtained only for permissible purposes. Confirm that the institution certifies to the consumer reporting agency the purposes for which it will obtain reports. (The certification is usually contained in the institution's contract with the consumer reporting agency.)

5. If procedural weaknesses or other risks requiring further investigation are noted, such as the receipt of several consumer complaints, review a sample of consumer reports obtained from a consumer reporting agency and determine whether the financial institution had permissible purposes for obtaining the reports. For example,
  - Obtain a copy of a billing statement or other list of consumer reports obtained by the financial institution from the consumer reporting agency over a period of time.
  - Compare this list, or a sample from this list, with the institution's records to ensure that there was a permissible purpose for obtaining the report(s)—for instance, the consumer applied for credit, insurance, or employment. The institution may also obtain a report in connection with the review of an existing account.

Fair Credit Reporting

Examination Module 2: Obtaining Information and Sharing among Affiliates

Overview

The Fair Credit Reporting Act (FCRA) sets forth many substantive compliance requirements for consumer reporting agencies that are designed to help ensure the accuracy and integrity of the consumer reporting system. As noted in the first section of this FCRA chapter, a consumer reporting agency is a person that generally furnishes consumer reports to third parties. By their very nature, banks, credit unions, and thrifts hold a significant amount of consumer information that could constitute a consumer report. Communication of this information could cause the institution to become a consumer reporting agency. The FCRA contains several exceptions that enable a financial institution to communicate this type of information, within strict guidelines, without becoming a consumer reporting agency.

Rather than containing strict information-sharing prohibitions, the FCRA creates a business disincentive such that if a financial institution shares consumer report information outside of the exceptions, the institution becomes a consumer reporting agency and is subject to the significant, substantive requirements of the FCRA applicable to those entities. Typically, a financial institution will structure its information-sharing practices within the exceptions to avoid becoming a consumer reporting agency. This examination module generally covers the information-sharing practices within these exceptions.

If upon completion of this module, examiners determine that the financial institution's information-sharing practices fall outside of these exceptions, the institution may be considered a consumer reporting agency, and the examination procedures in module 6 should be completed.

Consumer Report and Information Sharing (FCRA, Section 603(d))

FCRA, section 603(d), defines a consumer report to include information about a consumer that bears on a consumer's creditworthiness, character, and credit capacity, among other characteristics. Communication of this information may cause a person, including a financial institution, to become a consumer reporting agency. The statutory definition contains key exceptions to this definition that enable a financial institution to share this type of information under certain circumstances without becoming a consumer reporting agency. Specifically, the term "consumer report" does not include the following:

- A report containing information solely related to transactions or experiences between the consumer and the financial institution making the report. A person, including a financial institution, may share information strictly related to its own transactions or experiences with a consumer (such as the consumer's record with a loan or savings account at an institution) with any third party, without regard to affiliation, without becoming a consumer reporting agency. This type of information sharing may, however, be restricted under the Privacy of Consumer Financial Information regulations that implement the Gramm-Leach-Bliley Act (GLBA) because the information meets the definition of nonpublic personal information under the Privacy regulations; sharing it with nonaffiliated third parties may be subject to opt-out provisions under the Privacy regulations. In turn, the FCRA may restrict activities that the GLBA permits. For example, the GLBA permits a financial institution to share lists of its customers and information about those customers, such as their credit scores, with another financial institution for the purpose of jointly marketing or sponsoring other financial products or services. Such a communication may be considered a consumer report under the FCRA and could cause the sharing institution to become a consumer reporting agency.
- Communication of such transaction or experience information among persons, including financial institutions, related by common ownership or affiliated by corporate control.
- Communication of other information (that is, other than transaction or experience information) among persons, including financial institutions, related by common ownership or affiliated by corporate control (1) if it is clearly and conspicuously disclosed to the consumer that the information will be communicated among such entities and (2) if, before the information is initially communicated, the consumer is given the opportunity to opt out of the communication. Thus, a financial institution is allowed to share information (other than information about its own transactions or experiences) that could otherwise constitute a consumer report without becoming a consumer reporting agency under the following circumstances:
  - The sharing of the "other" information is done with affiliates

- Consumers are provided with the notice and an opportunity to opt out of this sharing before the information is first communicated among affiliates

“Other” information can include, for example, information provided by a consumer on an application form concerning accounts with other financial institutions. It can also include information obtained by a financial institution from a consumer reporting agency, such as the consumer’s credit score. If a financial institution shares other information with affiliates without providing a notice and an opportunity to opt out, the institution may become a consumer reporting agency subject to the FCRA requirements.

The opt-out right required by this section must be stated in a financial institution’s privacy notice, as required by the GLBA and its implementing regulations.

Other Exceptions

Specific Extensions of Credit

In addition, the term “consumer report” does not include the communication of a specific extension of credit directly or indirectly by the issuer of a credit card or similar device. For example, this exception allows a lender to communicate an authorization through a credit card network to a retailer, to enable a consumer to complete a purchase using a credit card.

Credit Decision to Third Party

The term “consumer report” also does not include any report in which a person, including a financial institution, that has been requested by a third party (such as an automobile dealer) to make a specific extension of credit directly or indirectly to a consumer conveys the decision with respect to the request. The third party must advise the consumer of the name and address of the financial institution to which the request was made, and the financial institution must make the adverse action disclosures when required by FCRA, section 615. For example, this exception allows a lender to communicate a credit decision to an automobile dealer that is arranging financing for the purchase of an automobile by a consumer who requires a loan to finance the transaction.

“Joint User” Rule

The Federal Trade Commission staff commentary discusses another exception, known as the Joint User Rule. Under this exception, users of consumer reports, including financial institutions, may share information with each other if they are jointly involved in the decision to approve a consumer’s request for a product or service, provided that each has a permissible purpose for obtaining a consumer report on the individual. For example, a consumer applies for a mortgage loan that will have a high loan-to-value ratio, and thus the lender will require private mortgage insurance (PMI) in order to approve the application. The PMI will be provided by an outside company. The lender and the PMI company may share consumer report information about the consumer because both entities have permissible purposes for obtaining the information and they are jointly involved in the decision to grant products to the consumer.

This exception applies both to entities that are affiliated and to nonaffiliated third parties. It is important to note that the GLBA still applies to the sharing of nonpublic personal information with nonaffiliated third parties; therefore, financial institutions should be aware that sharing under the FCRA Joint User Rule may still be limited or prohibited by the GLBA.

Protection of Medical Information (FCRA, Section 604(g); and Regulation V, Subpart D)

Section 604(g) generally prohibits creditors from obtaining and using medical information in connection with any determination of the consumer’s eligibility, or continued eligibility, for credit. The statute contains no prohibition regarding creditors’ obtaining or using medical information for other purposes that are not in connection with a determination of the consumer’s eligibility, or continued eligibility, for credit.

Section 604(g)(5)(A) required the FFIEC agencies to prescribe regulations that permit transactions determined to be necessary and appropriate to protect legitimate operational, transactional, risk, consumer, and other needs (including administrative verification purposes) and that are consistent with the congressional intent to restrict the use of medical information for inappropriate purposes. The agencies published final rules in the Federal Register (70 FR 70664) on November 22, 2005; subpart D of Regulation V implements the requirements for entities supervised by the Federal Reserve. The rules contain the general prohibition regarding obtaining or using medical information and provide exceptions for the limited circumstances under which medical information may be used. The rules define “credit” and “creditor” as having the same meanings as in section 702 of the Equal Credit Opportunity Act.

Obtaining and Using Unsolicited Medical Information (Regulation V, § 222.30(c))

A creditor does not violate the prohibition on obtaining medical information if it receives the medical information pertaining to a consumer in connection with any determination of the consumer's eligibility, or continued eligibility, for credit without specifically requesting medical information. However, the creditor may use this medical information only in connection with a determination of the consumer's eligibility, or continued eligibility, for credit in accordance with either the financial information exception or one of the specific other exceptions provided in the rules. These exceptions are discussed below.

Financial Information Exception (Regulation V, § 222.30(d))

A creditor is allowed to obtain and use medical information pertaining to a consumer in connection with any determination of the consumer's eligibility, or continued eligibility, for credit, so long as all of the following conditions are met:

- The information is the type of information routinely used in making credit eligibility determinations, such as information relating to debts, expenses, income, benefits, assets, collateral, or the purpose of the loan, including the use of the loan proceeds.
- The creditor uses the medical information in a manner and to an extent that is no less favorable than it would use comparable information that is not medical information in a credit transaction.
- The creditor does not take the consumer's physical, mental, or behavioral health, condition or history, type of treatment, or prognosis into account as part of any such determination.

The financial information exception is designed in part to allow a creditor to consider a consumer's medical debts and expenses in the assessment of that consumer's ability to repay the loan according to the loan terms. The financial information exception also allows a creditor to consider the dollar amount and continued eligibility for disability income, worker's compensation income, or other benefits related to health or a medical condition that is relied on as a source of repayment.

The creditor may use the medical information in a manner and to an extent that is no less favorable than it would use comparable nonmedical information. For example, a consumer includes on an application for credit information about two $20,000 debts. One debt is to a hospital; the other is to a retailer. The creditor may use and consider the debt to the hospital in the same manner in which it considers the debt to the retailer, such as including the debts in the calculation of the consumer's proposed debt-to-income ratio. In addition, the consumer's history of payment of the debt to the hospital may be considered in the same manner as payment of the debt to the retailer. For example, if the creditor does not grant loans to applicants who have debts that are ninety days past due, the creditor could consider the past-due status of a debt to the hospital in the same manner as it considers the past-due status of a debt to the retailer.

A creditor may use medical information in a manner that is more favorable to the consumer, according to its regular policies and procedures. For example, if a creditor has a routine policy of declining consumers who have a ninety-day past-due installment loan to a retailer but does not decline consumers who have a ninety-day past-due debt to a hospital, the financial information exception would allow the creditor to continue this policy without violating the rules, because in such a case, the creditor's treatment of the hospital debt is more favorable to the consumer.

A creditor may not take the consumer's physical, mental, or behavioral health, condition or history, type of treatment, or prognosis into account as part of any determination regarding the consumer's eligibility, or continued eligibility, for credit. The creditor may consider only the financial implications as discussed above, such as the status of a debt to a hospital or the continuance of disability income.

Specific Exceptions for Obtaining and Using Medical Information (Regulation V, § 222.30(e))

In addition to the financial information exception, the rules provide for the following nine specific exceptions under which a creditor may obtain and use medical information in its determination of the consumer's eligibility, or continued eligibility, for credit:

1. To determine whether the use of a power of attorney or legal representative that is triggered by a medical condition or event is necessary and appropriate, or whether the consumer has the legal capacity to contract when a person seeks to exercise a power of attorney or act as a legal representative for a consumer on the basis of an asserted medical condition or event. For example, if person A is attempting to act on behalf of person B under a power of attorney that is invoked on the basis of a medical event, a creditor is allowed to obtain and use medical information to verify that person B has experienced a medical condition or event such that

- person A is allowed to act under the power of attorney.
2. To comply with applicable requirements of local, state, or federal laws
  3. To determine, at the consumer's request, whether the consumer qualifies for a legally permissible special credit program or credit-related assistance program that is
    - Designed to meet the special needs of consumers with medical conditions, and
    - Established and administered pursuant to a written plan that
      - Identifies the class of persons that the program is designed to benefit, and
      - Sets forth the procedures and standards for extending credit or providing other credit-related assistance under the program
  4. To the extent necessary for purposes of fraud prevention or detection
  5. In the case of credit for the purpose of financing medical products or services, to determine and verify the medical purpose of the loan and the use of the proceeds
  6. Consistent with safe and sound banking practices, if the consumer or the consumer's legal representative requests that the creditor use medical information in determining the consumer's eligibility, or continued eligibility, for credit to accommodate the consumer's particular circumstances, and such request is documented by the creditor. For example, at the consumer's request, a creditor may grant an exception to its ordinary policy to accommodate a medical condition that the consumer has experienced. This exception allows a creditor to consider medical information in this context, but it does not require a creditor to make such an accommodation, nor does it require a creditor to grant a loan that is unsafe or unsound.
  7. Consistent with safe and sound practices, to determine whether the provisions of a forbearance practice or program that is triggered by a medical condition or event apply to a consumer. For example, if a creditor has a policy of delaying foreclosure in cases in which a consumer is experiencing a medical hardship, this exception allows the creditor to use medical information to determine if the policy would apply to the consumer. Like exception 6 above, this exception does not require a creditor to grant forbearance; it merely provides an exception so that a creditor may consider medical information in these instances.
  8. To determine the consumer's eligibility for, the triggering of, or the reactivation of a debt-cancellation contract or debt-suspension agreement if a medical condition or event is a triggering event for the provision of benefits under the contract or agreement

9. To determine the consumer's eligibility for, the triggering of, or the reactivation of a credit insurance product if a medical condition or event is a triggering event for the provision of benefits under the product

Limits on Redisclosure of Information (Regulation V, § 222.31(b))

If a creditor subject to the medical information rules receives medical information about a consumer from a consumer reporting agency or its affiliate, the creditor must not disclose that information to any other person, except as necessary to carry out the purpose for which the information was initially disclosed or as otherwise permitted by statute, regulation, or order.

Sharing Medical Information with Affiliates (Regulation V, § 222.32(b))

In general, the exclusions from the definition of "consumer report" in FCRA, section 603(d)(2), allow the sharing of information among affiliates. With regard to medical information, FCRA, section 603(d)(3), provides that the exclusions in section 603(d)(2) do not apply when a person subject to the medical information rules shares information of the following types with an affiliate:

- Medical information
- An individualized list or description based on the payment transactions of the consumer for medical products or services
- An aggregate list of identified consumers based on payment transactions for medical products or services

If a person that is subject to the medical rules shares with an affiliate information of one of the types listed above, the exclusions from the definition of "consumer report" do not apply. Effectively, this means that if a person shares medical information, that person becomes a consumer reporting agency, subject to all the other substantive requirements of the FCRA.

The rules provide exceptions to these limitations on sharing medical information with affiliates (Regulation V, section 222.32(c)). A covered entity, such as a state member bank, may share medical information with its affiliates without becoming a consumer reporting agency under one or more of the following circumstances:

- In connection with the business of insurance or annuities (including the activities described in section 18B of the model Privacy of Consumer Financial and Health Information Regulation issued by the National Association of Insurance Commissioners, as in effect on January 1, 2003)
- For any purpose permitted without authorization under the regulations issued by the Department of Health and Human Services pursuant to the Health Insurance Portability and Accountability Act of 1996 (HIPAA)
- For any purpose referred to in section 1179 of HIPAA
- For any purpose described in section 502(e) of the Gramm-Leach-Bliley Act
- In connection with a determination of the consumer's eligibility, or continued eligibility, for credit consistent with the financial information exceptions or specific exceptions
- As otherwise permitted by order of an FFIEC agency

Affiliate Marketing Opt-Out (Regulation V, § 222.20)

Section 624 gives a consumer the right to restrict an entity, with which it does not have a pre-existing business relationship, from using certain information obtained from an affiliate to make solicitations to that consumer. This provision is distinct from section 603(d)(2)(A)(iii) which gives a consumer the right to restrict the sharing of certain consumer information amongst affiliates.<sup>3</sup>

Under section 624, an entity may not use information received from an affiliate to market its products or services to a consumer, unless the consumer is given notice and a reasonable opportunity and a reasonable and simple method to opt out of the making of such solicitations. The affiliate marketing opt-out applies to information that an entity has obtained from transactions or its experience with a consumer. The opt-out also applies to "other" information, such as information the entity obtains about a consumer from credit reports and credit applications. On November 7, 2007, the federal financial institution regulators published final regulations in the Federal Register to implement this section (72 FR 62910).<sup>4</sup>

3. See Module 2, Consumer Report and Information Sharing (Section 603(d)), for provisions pertaining to the sharing of consumer information. Under section 603(d)(2)(A)(iii) of the FCRA, entities are responsible for complying with the affiliate sharing notice and opt-out requirement, where applicable. Thus, under the FCRA, certain consumer information will be subject to two opt-outs, a sharing opt-out (section 603(d)) and a marketing use opt-out (section 624). These two opt-outs may be consolidated.

4. See 12 CFR 222.20(a) for the scope of entities covered by Exceptions to the notice and opt-out requirements apply when an entity uses eligibility information in certain ways, as described later in these procedures.

Key Definitions (Regulation V, § 222.20)<sup>5</sup>

1. Eligibility information (12 CFR 222.20(b)(3)) includes not only transaction and experience information, but also the type of information found in consumer reports, such as information from third-party sources and credit scores. Eligibility information does not include aggregate or blind data that does not contain personal identifiers such as account numbers, names, or addresses.<sup>6</sup>
2. Pre-existing business relationship (12 CFR 222.20(b)(4))<sup>7</sup> means a relationship between a person, such as a financial institution (or a person's licensed agent), and a consumer based on
  - a. A financial contract between the person and the consumer which is in force on the date on which the consumer is sent a solicitation covered by the affiliate marketing regulation;
  - b. The purchase, rental, or lease by the consumer of the person's goods or services, or a financial transaction (including holding an active account or a policy in force, or having another continuing relationship) between the consumer and the person, during the 18-month period immediately preceding the date on which the consumer is sent a solicitation covered by the affiliate marketing regulation; or
  - c. An inquiry or application by the consumer regarding a product or service offered by that person during the three-month period immediately preceding the date on which the consumer is sent a solicitation covered by the affiliate marketing regulation.
3. Solicitation (12 CFR 222.20(b)(5)) means the marketing of a product or service initiated by a person, such as a financial institution, to a particular consumer that is
  - a. Based on eligibility information communicated to that person by its affiliate, and
  - b. Intended to encourage the consumer to

Subpart C of 12 CFR 222.

5. See 12 CFR 222.20 for other definitions.

6. Specifically, "eligibility information" is defined in the affiliate marketing regulation as "any information the communication of which would be a consumer report if the exclusions from the definition of 'consumer report' in Section 603(d)(2)(A) of the [Fair Credit Reporting] Act did not apply."

7. See 12 CFR 222.20(b)(4)(ii) and (iii) for examples of pre-existing business relationships and situations where no pre-existing business relationship exists.

purchase or obtain such product or service.

Examples of a solicitation include a telemarketing call, direct mail, e-mail, or other form of marketing communication directed to a particular consumer that is based on eligibility information received from an affiliate. A solicitation does not include marketing communications that are directed at the general public (for example, television, general circulation magazine, and billboard advertisements).

Initial Notice and Opt-Out Requirement (Regulation V, §§ 222.21(a), 222.24, and 222.25)

A financial institution and its subsidiaries (“financial institution”) generally may not use eligibility information about a consumer that it receives from an affiliate to make a solicitation for marketing purposes to the consumer, unless

1. It is clearly and conspicuously disclosed to the consumer in writing or, if the consumer agrees, electronically, in a concise notice that the financial institution may use eligibility information about that consumer that it received from an affiliate to make solicitations for marketing purposes to the consumer;
2. The consumer is provided a reasonable opportunity and a reasonable and simple method to “opt out” (that is, the consumer prohibits the financial institution from using eligibility information to make solicitations for marketing purposes to the consumer);<sup>8</sup> and
3. The consumer has not opted out.

For example, a consumer has a homeowner’s insurance policy with an insurance company. The insurance company shares eligibility information about the consumer with its affiliated depository institution. Based on that eligibility information, the depository institution wants to make a solicitation to the consumer about its home equity loan products. The depository institution does not have a pre-existing business relationship with the consumer and none of the other exceptions apply. The depository institution may not use eligibility information it received from its insurance affiliate to make solicitations to the consumer about its home equity loan products unless the insurance company gave the consumer a notice and opportunity to opt out and the consumer does not opt out.

8. See 12 CFR 222.24 and 222.25 for examples of “a reasonable opportunity to opt out” and “reasonable and simple methods for opting out.”

Making Solicitations (Regulation V, § 222.21(b))<sup>9</sup>

A financial institution (or a service provider acting on behalf of the financial institution) makes a solicitation for marketing purposes if

1. The financial institution receives eligibility information from an affiliate, including when the affiliate places that information into a common database that the financial institution may access;
2. The financial institution uses that eligibility information to do one or more of the following:
  - a. Identify the consumer or type of consumer to receive a solicitation;
  - b. Establish criteria used to select the consumer to receive a solicitation; or
  - c. Decide which of the financial institution’s products or services to market to the consumer or tailor the financial institution’s solicitation to that consumer; and
3. As a result of the financial institution’s use of the eligibility information, the consumer is provided a solicitation.

A financial institution does not make a solicitation for marketing purposes (and therefore the affiliate marketing regulation, with its notice and opt-out requirements, does not apply) in the situations listed below, commonly referred to as “constructive sharing.” Constructive sharing occurs when a financial institution provides criteria to an affiliate to use in marketing the financial institution’s product and the affiliate uses the criteria to send marketing materials to the affiliate’s own customers that meet the criteria. In this situation, the financial institution is not using shared eligibility information to make solicitations.

1. The financial institution provides criteria for consumers to whom it would like its affiliate to market the financial institution’s products. Then, based on this criteria, the affiliate uses eligibility information that the affiliate obtained in connection with its own pre-existing business relationship with the consumer to market the financial institution’s products or services (or directs its service provider to use the eligibility information in the same manner and the financial institution does not communicate with the service provider regarding that use).

9. See 12 CFR 222.21(b)(6) for examples of making solicitations.

2. A service provider, applying the financial institution's criteria, uses information from an affiliate, such as that in a shared database, to market the financial institution's products or services to the consumer, so long as it meets certain requirements, including
  - a. The affiliate controls access to, and use of, its eligibility information by the service provider under a written agreement between the affiliate and the service provider;
  - b. The affiliate establishes, in writing, specific terms and conditions under which the service provider may access and use the affiliate's eligibility information to market the financial institution's products and services (or those of affiliates generally) to the consumer;
  - c. The affiliate requires the service provider, under a written agreement, to implement reasonable policies and procedures designed to ensure that the service provider uses the affiliate's eligibility information in accordance with the terms and conditions established by the affiliate relating to the marketing of the financial institution's products or services;
  - d. The affiliate is identified on or with the marketing materials provided to the consumer; and
  - e. The financial institution does not directly use its affiliate's eligibility information in the manner described above under "Making Solicitations (Regulation V, § 222.21(b)),” item 2.

Exceptions to Initial Notice and Opt-out Requirements (Regulation V, § 222.21(c))<sup>10</sup>

The initial notice and opt-out requirements do not apply to a financial institution if it uses eligibility information that it receives from an affiliate

1. To make a solicitation for marketing purposes to a consumer with whom the financial institution has a pre-existing business relationship;
2. To facilitate communications to an individual for whose benefit the financial institution provides employee benefit or other services pursuant to a contract with an employer;
3. To perform services on behalf of an affiliate (but this would not allow solicitation where the consumer has opted out);
4. In response to a communication about the financial institution's products or services initiated by the consumer;

5. In response to a consumer's authorization or request to receive solicitations; or
6. If the financial institution's compliance with the affiliate marketing regulation would prevent it from complying with State insurance laws pertaining to unfair discrimination in any state in which the financial institution is lawfully doing business.

Contents of Opt-out Notice (Regulation V, § 222.23)

A financial institution must provide to the consumer a reasonable and simple method for the consumer to opt out. The opt-out notice must be clear, conspicuous, and concise, and must accurately disclose specific information outlined in 12 CFR 222.23(a), including that the consumer may elect to limit the use of eligibility information to make solicitations to the consumer. See Appendix C to the regulation for the model notices contained in the affiliate marketing regulation.

Alternative contents. An affiliate that provides a consumer a broader right to opt out than that required by the affiliate marketing regulation may satisfy the regulatory requirements by providing the consumer with a clear, conspicuous, and concise notice that accurately discloses the consumer's opt-out rights.

Coordinated, consolidated, and equivalent notices. Opt-out and renewal notices may be coordinated and consolidated with any other notice or disclosure required under any other provision of law, such as the Gramm-Leach-Bliley Act (GLBA), 15 USC 6801 et seq. Renewal notices, which have additional required content (12 CFR 222.27), may be consolidated with the annual GLBA privacy notices.

Delivery of the Opt-Out Notice (Regulation V, §§ 222.21(a)(3) and 222.26)<sup>11</sup>

An affiliate that has or previously had a pre-existing business relationship with the consumer must provide the notice either individually or as part of a joint notice from two or more members of an affiliated group of companies. The opt-out notice must be provided so that each consumer can reasonably be expected to receive actual notice. A consumer may not reasonably be expected to receive actual notice if, for example, the affiliate providing the notice sends the notice via e-mail to a

<sup>10</sup>. See 12 CFR 222.21(d) for examples of exceptions to the initial notice and opt-out requirement.

<sup>11</sup>. See 12 CFR 222.26(b) and (c) for examples of "reasonable expectation of actual notice" and "no reasonable expectation of actual notice."

consumer who has not agreed to receive electronic disclosures by e-mail from the affiliate providing the notice.<sup>12</sup>

Scope of Opt-Out (Regulation V, §§ 222.22(a) and 222.23(a)(2))<sup>13</sup>

As a general rule, the consumer's election to opt out prohibits any affiliate covered by the opt-out notice from using eligibility information received from another affiliate, described in the notice, to make solicitations to the consumer. If two or more consumers jointly obtain a product or service, any of the joint consumers may exercise the right to opt out. It is impermissible to require all joint consumers to opt out before implementing any opt-out direction.

Menu of alternatives. A consumer may be given the opportunity to choose from a menu of alternatives when electing to prohibit solicitations, such as by

1. Electing to prohibit solicitations from certain types of affiliates covered by the opt-out notice but not other types of affiliates covered by the notice,
2. Electing to prohibit solicitations based on certain types of eligibility information but not other types of eligibility information, or
3. Electing to prohibit solicitations by certain methods of delivery but not other methods of delivery.

One of the alternatives, however, must allow the consumer to prohibit all solicitations from all of the affiliates that are covered by the notice.

Continuing relationship. If the consumer establishes a continuing relationship with a financial institution or its affiliate, an opt-out notice may apply to eligibility information obtained from one or more continuing relationships (such as a deposit account, a mortgage loan, or a credit card), if the notice adequately describes the continuing relationships covered. The opt-out notice can also apply to future continuing relationships if the notice adequately describes the continuing future relationships that would be covered.

Special rule for a notice following termination of all continuing relationships. After all continuing relationships with a financial institution or its affiliate(s) are terminated, a consumer must be given a new opt-out notice if the consumer later establishes another continuing relationship with the financial institution or its affiliate(s) and the consumer's eligibility information is to be used to make a solicitation. The consumer's decision not to opt out after receiving the new opt-out notice would not override a prior opt-out election that applies to eligibility information obtained in connection with a terminated relationship.

No continuing relationship (isolated transaction). If the consumer does not establish a continuing relationship with a financial institution or its affiliate, but the financial institution or its affiliate obtains eligibility information about the consumer in connection with a transaction with the consumer (such as an ATM cash withdrawal, purchase of traveler's checks, or a credit application that is denied), an opt-out notice provided to the consumer only applies to eligibility information obtained in connection with that transaction.

Time, Duration, and Renewal of Opt-Out (Regulation V, §§ 222.22(b) and (c) and 222.27)

A consumer may opt out at any time. The opt-out must be effective for a period of at least five years beginning when the consumer's opt-out election is received and implemented, unless the consumer later revokes the opt-out in writing or, if the consumer agrees, electronically. An opt-out period may be set at more than five years, including an opt-out that does not expire unless the consumer revokes it.

Renewal after opt-out period expires. After the opt-out period expires, a financial institution may not make solicitations based on eligibility information it receives from an affiliate to a consumer who previously opted out, unless

1. The consumer receives a renewal notice and opportunity to opt out, and the consumer does not renew the opt-out; or
2. An exception to the notice and opt-out requirements applies.<sup>14</sup>

Contents of renewal notice. The renewal notice must be clear, conspicuous, and concise, and must accurately disclose most of the elements of the original opt-out notice, as well as the facts that

1. The consumer previously elected to limit the use of certain information to make solicitations to the consumer;
2. The consumer's election has expired or is about to expire;
3. The consumer may elect to renew the consumer's previous election; and
4. If applicable, that the consumer's election to renew will apply for the specified period of time

12. For opt-out notices provided electronically, the notice may be provided in compliance with either the electronic disclosure provisions of 12 CFR 222.24(b)(2) and 222.24(b)(3) or the provisions in section 101 of the Electronic Signatures in Global and National Commerce Act, 15 USC 7001 et seq.

13. See 12 CFR 222.22(a) for examples of the scope of the opt-out, including examples of continuing relationships.

14. See 12 CFR 222.21(c) for exceptions.

stated in the notice and that the consumer will be allowed to renew the election once that period expires.

See 12 CFR 222.27(b) for all the content requirements of renewal notice.

Renewal period. Each opt-out renewal must be effective for a period of at least five years.

Affiliate who may provide the notice. The renewal notice must be provided by the affiliate that provided the previous opt-out notice, or its successor; or as part of a joint renewal notice from two or more members of an affiliated group of companies, or their successors, that jointly provided the previous opt-out notice.

Timing of the renewal notice. A renewal notice may be provided to the consumer either at a reasonable period of time before the expiration of the opt-out period<sup>15</sup> or at any time after the expiration of the opt-out period but before solicitations that would have been prohibited by the expired opt-out are made to the consumer.

Prospective Application (Regulation V, § 222.28(c))

A financial institution may use eligibility information received from an affiliate to make solicitations to a consumer if it received such information prior to

<sup>15</sup> An opt-out period may not be shortened by sending a renewal notice to the consumer before expiration of the opt-out period, even if the consumer does not renew the opt-out. If a financial institution provides an annual privacy notice under the Gramm-Leach-Bliley Act, providing a renewal notice with the last annual privacy notice provided to the consumer before expiration of the opt-out period is a reasonable period of time before expiration of the opt-out in all cases. 12 CFR 222.27(d)

October 1, 2008, the mandatory compliance date of the affiliate marketing regulation. An institution is deemed to have received eligibility information when such information is placed into a common database and is accessible by the institution prior to that date.

Model Forms for Opt-Out Notices (Regulation V, § 222, Appendix C)

Appendix C of the affiliate marketing regulation contains model forms that may be used to comply with the requirement for clear, conspicuous, and concise notices. The five model forms are

- C-1 Model Form for Initial Opt-out Notice (Single-Affiliate Notice)
- C-2 Model Form for Initial Opt-out Notice (Joint Notice)
- C-3 Model Form for Renewal Notice (Single-Affiliate Notice)
- C-4 Model Form for Renewal Notice (Joint Notice)
- C-5 Model Form for Voluntary “No Marketing” Notice

Use of the model forms is not required and a financial institution may make certain changes to the language or format of the model forms without losing the protection from liability afforded by use of the model forms. These changes may not be so extensive as to affect the substance, clarity, or meaningful sequence of the language in the model forms. Institutions making such extensive revisions will lose the “safe harbor” that Appendix C provides. Examples of acceptable changes are provided in Appendix C to the regulation.

Consumer Report and Information Sharing (FCRA, Section 603(d))

1. Review the financial institution's policies, procedures, and practices concerning the sharing of consumer information with third parties, including both affiliated and nonaffiliated third parties. Determine the type of information shared and with whom the information is shared. (This portion of the examination may overlap with a review of the institution's compliance with Regulation P, Privacy of Consumer Financial Information, which implements the Gramm-Leach-Bliley Act.)
2. Determine whether the financial institution's information-sharing practices fall within the exceptions to the definition of a consumer report. If they do not, the financial institution could be considered a consumer reporting agency, in which case the examination procedures in module 6 should be completed.
3. If the financial institution shares information other than transaction and experience information with affiliates subject to opt-out provisions, determine whether the institution's GLBA privacy notice contains information regarding how to opt out, as required by Regulation P.
4. If procedural weaknesses or other risks requiring further investigation are noted, obtain a sample of opt-out rights exercised by consumers and determine whether the financial institution honored the opt-out requests by not sharing "other information" about those consumers with the institution's affiliates after receiving the opt-out requests.

Protection of Medical Information (FCRA, Section 604(g); and Regulation V, Subpart D)

1. Review the financial institution's policies, procedures, and practices concerning the collection and use of consumer medical information in connection with any determination of the consumer's eligibility, or continued eligibility, for credit.
2. If the financial institution's policies, procedures, and practices allow for obtaining and using consumer medical information in the context of a credit transaction, determine whether there are adequate controls in place to ensure that the information is used only subject to the financial information exception or one of the specific exceptions set forth in Regulation V.

3. If procedural weaknesses or other risks requiring further investigation are noted, obtain samples of credit transactions to determine whether the use of consumer medical information was done strictly under the financial information exception or one of the specific exceptions in Regulation V.
4. Determine whether the financial institution has adequate policies and procedures in place to limit the redisclosure of consumer medical information that was received from a consumer reporting agency or an affiliate.
5. Determine whether the financial institution shares medical information about a consumer with its affiliates. If it does, determine whether the sharing occurred in accordance with an exception in Regulation V that enables the institution to share the information without becoming a consumer reporting agency.

Affiliate Marketing Opt-Out (FCRA, Section 624; and Regulation V, Section 222.20)

1. Determine whether the financial institution receives consumer eligibility information from an affiliate. Stop here if it does not because Subpart C of 12 CFR 222 does not apply.
2. Determine whether the financial institution uses consumer eligibility information received from an affiliate to make a solicitation for marketing purposes that is subject to the notice and opt-out requirements. If it does not, stop here.
3. Evaluate the institution's policies, procedures, practices, and internal controls to ensure that, where applicable, the consumer is provided with an appropriate notice, a reasonable opportunity, and a reasonable and simple method to opt out of the institution's using eligibility information to make solicitations for marketing purposes to the consumer, and that the institution is honoring the consumer's opt-outs.
4. If compliance risk management weaknesses or other risks requiring further investigation are noted, obtain and review a sample of notices to ensure technical compliance and a sample of opt-out requests from consumers to determine if the institution is honoring the opt-out requests.
  - a. Determine whether the opt-out notices are clear, conspicuous, and concise and contain the required information, including the name of the affiliate(s) providing the notice, a general description of the types of eligibility information that may be used to make solicitations to the consumer, and the duration of the opt out. (12 CFR 222.23(a))

- b. Review opt-out notices that are coordinated and consolidated with any other notice or disclosure that is required under other provisions of law for compliance with the affiliate marketing regulation. (12 CFR 222.23(b))
- c. Determine whether the opt-out notices and renewal notices provide the consumer a reasonable opportunity to opt out and a reasonable and simple method to opt out.

(12 CFR 222.24 and 222.25)

- d. Determine whether the opt-out notice and renewal notice are provided (by mail delivery or electronically) so that a consumer can reasonably be expected to receive that actual notice. (12 CFR 222.26)
- e. Determine whether, after an opt-out period expires, a financial institution provides a consumer a renewal notice prior to making solicitations based on eligibility information received from an affiliate. (12 CFR 222.27)

Fair Credit Reporting

Examination Module 3: Disclosures to Consumers and Miscellaneous Requirements

Overview

The Fair Credit Reporting Act (FCRA) requires financial institutions to provide consumers with various notices and information under a variety of circumstances. This module deals with examination responsibilities for these various areas.

Use of Consumer Reports for Employment Purposes (FCRA, Section 604(b))

FCRA, section 604(b), sets forth specific requirements for financial institutions that obtain consumer reports on its employees or prospective employees prior to, and/or during, the term of employment. The FCRA generally requires the written permission of the consumer to procure a consumer report for “employment purposes.” Moreover, a clear and conspicuous disclosure that a consumer report may be obtained for employment purposes must be provided in writing to the consumer prior to procuring a report.

Prior to taking any adverse action involving employment that is based in whole or in part on the consumer report, the user generally must provide to the consumer

- A copy of the report, and
- A description in writing of the rights of the consumer, as prescribed by the Federal Trade Commission (FTC) in FCRA, section 609(c)(1).

At the time a financial institution takes adverse action in an employment situation, the consumer must also be provided with an adverse action notice, as required by FCRA, section 615, and described later in this module.

Prescreened Consumer Reports and Opt-Out Notice (FCRA, Sections 604(c) and 615(d); and FTC Regulations, Parts 642 and 698)

FCRA, section 604(c)(1)(B), allows persons, including financial institutions, to obtain and use consumer reports on any consumer in connection with any credit or insurance transaction that is not initiated by the consumer, for the purpose of making firm offers of credit or insurance. This process, known as prescreening, occurs when a financial institution obtains, from a consumer reporting agency, a list of consumers who meet certain predetermined creditworthiness criteria and who have not elected to be excluded from such lists. These lists may contain only the following information:

- The name and address of a consumer
- An identifier that is not unique to the consumer and that is used by the person solely for the purpose of verifying the identity of the consumer
- Other information pertaining to a consumer that does not identify the relationship or experience of the consumer with respect to a particular creditor or other entity

Each name on the list is considered an individual consumer report. In order to obtain and use these lists, the financial institution must make a “firm offer of credit or insurance,” as defined in FCRA, section 603(l), to each person on the list. The institution is not required to grant credit or insurance if the consumer is found to be not creditworthy or insurable or cannot furnish required collateral, provided that the underwriting criteria are determined in advance.

Example 1. Assume that a home mortgage lender obtains from a consumer reporting agency a list of everyone in county X who has a current home mortgage loan and a credit score of 700. The lender will use this list to market a second-lien home equity loan product. Besides the criteria used to create the prescreened list for this product, the lender’s criteria include a total debt-to-income ratio (DTI) of 50 percent or less. Some of these other criteria can be screened by the consumer reporting agency, but others, such as the DTI, must be determined from an application or other sources when consumers respond to the offer. If a consumer who responds to the offer has a DTI of 60 percent, the lender does not have to grant the loan.

In addition, the financial institution is allowed to obtain a full consumer report on anyone responding to the offer in order to verify that the consumer continues to meet the creditworthiness criteria. If the consumer no longer meets those criteria, the institution does not have to grant the loan.

Example 2. On January 1, a credit card lender obtains from a consumer reporting agency a list of consumers in county Y who have credit scores of 720 and no previous bankruptcy records. On January 2, the lender mails solicitations offering a preapproved credit card to everyone on the list. On January 31, a consumer responds to the offer and the lender obtains and reviews a full consumer report, which shows that a bankruptcy record was added on January 15. Since this consumer no longer meets the lender’s predetermined criteria, the lender is not required to issue the credit card.

These basic requirements seek to ensure that financial institutions that obtain prescreened lists follow through with an offer of credit or insurance. An institution must maintain a list of the criteria used for the product (including the criteria used to generate the prescreened list and any other criteria, such as collateral requirements) on file for three years, beginning on the date that the offer was made to the consumer.

Technical Notice and Opt-Out Requirements

FCRA, section 615(d), sets forth consumer protections and technical notice requirements concerning prescreened offers of credit or insurance. The FCRA requires consumer reporting agencies that operate nationwide to jointly operate an “opt-out” system whereby consumers can elect to be excluded from prescreened lists by calling a toll-free number.

When a financial institution obtains and uses such lists, it must provide consumers with a “prescreen opt-out notice” along with a written offer of credit or insurance. The notice alerts consumers that they are receiving the offer because they meet certain creditworthiness criteria. The notice must also provide the toll-free telephone number operated by the nationwide consumer reporting agencies for consumers to call to opt out of prescreened lists.

The FCRA sets forth the basic requirement concerning the provision of notices to consumers at the time prescreened offers are made. The FTC’s implementing regulation, which spells out the technical requirements of the notice, are at 16 CFR 642 and 698. This regulation—which is applicable to anyone, including banks, credit unions, and thrifts, that obtains and uses prescreened consumer reports—became effective on August 1, 2005; however, the requirement to provide a notice containing the toll-free opt-out telephone number has existed under the FCRA for many years.

Requirements Beginning August 1, 2005

The FTC regulations—16 CFR 642 and 698—require that a “short” notice and a “long” notice of the “prescreen opt-out” information be given with each written solicitation made to consumers on the basis of prescreened consumer reports. These regulations, which were published on January 31, 2005, at 70 FR 5022, also contain specific requirements concerning the content and appearance of these notices. The requirements are listed below.

The short notice must be a clear and conspicuous, simple, and easy-to-understand statement, as follows:

- Content. The short notice must state that the consumer has the right to opt out of receiving prescreened solicitations, must provide the toll-free number, must direct consumers to the existence and location of the long notice, and must state the title of the long notice. It may not contain any other information.
- Form. The short notice must be in a type size larger than the principal text on the same page, but it may not be smaller than 12 point type. If the notice is provided by electronic means, it must be larger than the type size of the principal text on the same page.
- Location. The short notice must be on the front side of the first page of the principal promotional document in the solicitation or, if provided electronically, on the same page and in close proximity to the principal marketing message. The statement must be located so that it is distinct from other information, such as inside a border, and must be in a distinct type style, such as bolded, italicized, underlined, and/or in a color that contrasts with the principal text on the page, if the solicitation is provided in more than one color.

The long notice must also be a clear and conspicuous, simple, and easy-to-understand statement, as follows:

- Content. The long notice must state the information required by FCRA, section 615(d), and may not include any other information that interferes with, detracts from, contradicts, or otherwise undermines the purpose of the notice.
- Form. The long notice must appear in the solicitation and be in a type size that is no smaller than the type size of the principal text on the same page; for solicitations provided other than by electronic means, the type size may not be smaller than 8-point. The notice must begin with a heading, in capital letters and underlined, identifying the long notice as the “PREScreen & OPT OUT NOTICE.” Also, the notice must be in a type style that is distinct from the principal type style used on the same page, such as bolded, italicized, underlined, and/or in a color that contrasts with the principal text, if the solicitation is in more than one color. Further, the notice must be set apart from other text on the page, such as by including a blank line above and below the statement, and by indenting both the left and right margins from other text on the page.

Model prescreen opt-out notices developed by the FTC, along with complete sample solicitations showing context, appear in appendix A to 16 CFR 698. The model notice text is shown below.

Sample Short Notice

You can choose to stop receiving “prescreened” offers of [credit or insurance] from this and other companies by calling toll-free [toll-free number]. See PRESCREEN & OPT-OUT NOTICE on other side [or other location] for more information about prescreened offers.

Sample Long Notice

PRESCREEN & OPT-OUT NOTICE: This “prescreened” offer of [credit or insurance] is based on information in your credit report indicating that you meet certain criteria. This offer is not guaranteed if you do not meet our criteria [including providing acceptable property as collateral]. If you do not want to receive prescreened offers of [credit or insurance] from this and other companies, call the consumer reporting agencies [or name of consumer reporting agency] toll-free, [toll-free number]; or write: [consumer reporting agency name and mailing address].

Truncation of Credit and Debit Card Account Numbers (FCRA, Section 605(g))

FCRA, section 605(g), provides that persons, including financial institutions, that accept debit and credit cards for the transaction of business are prohibited from issuing electronically generated receipts that contain more than the last five digits of the card number, or the card expiration date, at the point of sale or transaction. This requirement applies only to electronically developed receipts and does not apply to handwritten receipts or those developed with an imprint of the card.

For automatic teller machines (ATMs) and point-of-sale (POS) terminals or other machines that were put into operation before January 1, 2005, this requirement is effective on December 4, 2006. For those that were put into operation on or after January 1, 2005, the effective date is the date of installation.

Disclosure of Credit Scores by Certain Mortgage Lenders (FCRA, Section 609(g))

FCRA, section 609(g), requires financial institutions that make or arrange mortgage loans using credit scores to provide the score, with accompanying information, to applicants.

Credit Score

For purposes of this section, credit score is defined as a numerical value or a categorization derived from a statistical tool or modeling system used by a person that makes or arranges a loan to predict the likelihood of certain credit behaviors, including default (the numerical value or the categorization derived from such analysis may also be referred to as a “risk predictor” or “risk score”). A credit score does not include

- Any mortgage score or rating by an automated underwriting system that considers one or more factors in addition to credit information, such as the loan-to-value ratio, the amount of down payment, or the financial assets of a consumer, or
- Any other elements of the underwriting process or underwriting decision.

Covered Transactions

The disclosure requirement applies to both closed-end and open-end loans that are for consumer purposes and are secured by one- to four-family residential real properties, including purchase and refinance transactions. The requirement does not apply in circumstances that do not involve a consumer purpose, such as when a borrower obtains a loan secured by his or her residence to finance his or her small business.

Specific Required Notice

Financial institutions that are engaged in covered transactions and that use credit scores must provide a disclosure containing the specific language shown below, which is contained in FCRA, section 609(g)(1)(D):

Notice to the Home Loan Applicant

In connection with your application for a home loan, the lender must disclose to you the score that a consumer reporting agency distributed to users and the lender used in connection with your home loan, and the key factors affecting your credit scores.

The credit score is a computer generated summary calculated at the time of the request and based on information that a consumer reporting agency or lender has on file. The scores are based on data about your credit history and payment patterns. Credit scores are important because they are used to assist the lender in determining whether you will obtain a loan. They may also be used to determine what interest rate you may be offered on the mortgage. Credit scores can change over time, depending on your conduct, how your credit history and payment patterns change, and how credit scoring technologies change.

Because the score is based on information in your credit history, it is very important that you review the credit-related information that is being furnished to make sure it is accurate. Credit records may vary from one company to another.

If you have questions about your credit score or the credit information that is furnished to you, contact the consumer reporting agency at the address and telephone number provided with this notice, or contact the lender, if the lender developed or generated the credit score. The consumer reporting agency plays no part in the decision to take any action on the loan application and is unable to provide you with specific reasons for the decision on a loan application.

If you have questions concerning the terms of the loan, contact the lender.

The notice must include the name, address, and telephone number of each consumer reporting agency that provided a credit score that was used.

Credit Score and Key Factors Disclosed

In addition to providing the notice to home loan applicants, financial institutions must disclose the credit score, the range of possible scores, the date on which the score was created, and the “key factors” used in calculating the score. Key factors are all relevant elements or reasons adversely affecting the credit score for the particular individual, listed in the order of their importance based on their effect on the credit score. The total number of factors to be disclosed must not exceed four. However, if one of the key factors is the number of inquiries into a consumer’s credit information, then the total number of factors must not exceed five. These key factors come from information supplied by the consumer reporting agencies with any consumer report that was furnished containing a credit score. (FCRA, section 605(d)(2))

This disclosure requirement applies to any application for a covered transaction, regardless of the final action on the application taken by the lender. The FCRA requires a financial institution to disclose all of the credit scores that were used in these transactions. For example, if two applicants jointly apply for a mortgage loan to purchase a single-family residence and the lender uses the credit scores of both, then both scores need to be disclosed. The statute specifically does not require that more than one disclosure be provided per loan; therefore, if multiple scores are used, all of them can be included in one disclosure containing the Notice to the Home Loan Applicant.

If a financial institution uses a credit score that was not obtained directly from a consumer reporting agency but may contain some information from a consumer reporting agency, this disclosure requirement can be satisfied by providing a score and associated key factor information that were supplied by the consumer reporting agency. For example, certain automated underwriting systems generate scores used in credit decisions. These systems are often populated by data obtained from consumer reporting agencies. If a financial institution uses such an automated system, the disclosure requirement can be satisfied by providing the applicants with a score and list of key factors supplied by a consumer reporting agency based on the data, including the credit score(s), that were imported into the automated system. Doing so will provide applicants with information about their credit history and its role in the credit decision, in the spirit of this section of the statute.

Timing

The statute requires that the disclosure be provided as soon as is reasonably practicable after the credit score is used.

Adverse Action Disclosures (FCRA, Sections 615(a) and (b))

The FCRA requires certain disclosures when adverse actions are taken with respect to consumers on the basis of information received from third parties. Specific disclosures are required depending on whether the source of the information is a consumer reporting agency, a third party other than a consumer reporting agency, or an affiliate. The disclosure requirements are discussed separately below.

Information Obtained from a Consumer Reporting Agency

Section 615(a) provides that when adverse action is taken with respect to any consumer that is based in whole or in part on any information contained in a consumer report, the financial institution must do all of the following:

- Provide oral, written, or electronic notice of the adverse action to the consumer
- Provide to the consumer, orally, in writing, or electronically,
  - The name, address, and telephone number of the consumer reporting agency from which it received the information (including a toll-free telephone number established by the agency, if the agency maintains files on a nationwide basis)
  - A statement that the consumer reporting agency did not make the decision to take the adverse action and is unable to give the consumer the specific reasons for the adverse action

- Provide to the consumer an oral, written, or electronic notice of (1) the consumer's right to obtain a free copy of the consumer report from the consumer reporting agency, within sixty days of receiving notice of the adverse action, and (2) the consumer's right to dispute the accuracy or completeness of any information in the consumer report with the consumer reporting agency

Information Obtained from a Source Other Than a Consumer Reporting Agency

Section 615(b)(1) provides that if credit for personal, family, or household purposes involving a consumer is denied or if the charge for such credit is increased, partially or wholly on the basis of information that was obtained from a person other than a consumer reporting agency and that bears on the consumer's creditworthiness, credit standing, credit capacity, character, general reputation, personal characteristics, or mode of living, the financial institution,

- At the time the adverse action is communicated to the consumer, must clearly and accurately disclose the consumer's right to file a written request for the reasons for the adverse action, and
- If it receives such a request within sixty days after the consumer learns of the adverse action, must disclose, within a reasonable period of time, the nature of the adverse information. The information should be sufficiently detailed to enable the consumer to evaluate its accuracy. The source of the information need not be, but may be, disclosed. In some instances, it may be impossible to identify the nature of certain information without also revealing the source.

Information Obtained from an Affiliate

Section 615(b)(2) provides that if a person, including a financial institution, takes an adverse action involving credit (in connection with a transaction initiated by a consumer), insurance, or employment in whole or in part on the basis of information provided by an affiliate, it must notify the consumer that the information

- Is furnished to the person taking the action by a person related by common ownership, or affiliated by common corporate control, to the person taking the action;
- Bears upon the consumer's creditworthiness, credit standing, credit capacity, character, general reputation, personal characteristics, or mode of living;

- Is not information solely involving transactions or experiences between the consumer and the person furnishing the information; and
- Is not information in a consumer report.

The notification must inform the consumer of the adverse action and that the consumer may obtain a disclosure of the nature of the information relied on by making a written request within sixty days of transmittal of the adverse action notice. If the consumer makes such a request, the user must disclose the nature of the information received from the affiliate not later than thirty days after receiving the request.

Debt Collector Communications concerning Identity Theft (FCRA, Section 615(g))

Section 615(g) sets forth specific requirements for financial institutions that act as debt collectors, that is, financial institutions that collect debts on behalf of a third party that is a creditor or other user of a consumer report. The requirements do not apply when a financial institution is collecting its own loans. When a financial institution is notified that any information relating to a debt that it is attempting to collect may be fraudulent or may be the result of identity theft, the institution must notify the third party of this fact. In addition, if the consumer to whom the debt purportedly relates requests information about the transaction, the financial institution must provide all of the information the consumer would otherwise be entitled to if the consumer wished to dispute the debt under other provisions of law applicable to the financial institution.

Duties of Users Regarding Risk-Based Pricing (FCRA, Section 615(h); and Regulation V, Subpart H)

Section 615(h) of the Fair Credit Reporting Act (FCRA) generally requires a user of consumer reports, such as a financial institution, to provide a risk-based pricing notice to a consumer when the financial institution, based on a consumer report, extends credit to the consumer on terms that are "materially less favorable" than the terms the financial institution has extended to other consumers. On January 15, 2010, the Federal Reserve and the Federal Trade Commission published final rules in the Federal Register (75 FR 2724) implementing this section of the FCRA.

The risk-based pricing notice requirement is designed primarily to improve the accuracy of consumer reports by alerting consumers to the existence of negative information in their consumer reports so that the consumers can, if they choose, check their consumer reports for accuracy and correct any inaccurate information. This notice provision is meant to complement an existing provision of the FCRA, Section 615(a), whereby a creditor that denies a consumer's application for credit, based in whole or in part on information in a consumer's report, must provide an adverse action notice. The new provision, Section 615(h), covers the situation where credit is offered at "materially less favorable terms," rather than being denied.

Definitions (12 CFR 222.71)

The following definitions pertain to the rules governing the risk-based pricing regulation:

1. "Material terms" means in general:
  - a. For open-end credit, the annual percentage rate (APR) required to be disclosed in the account opening disclosures required under Regulation Z. This does not include a temporary initial rate that is lower than the rate that will apply when the temporary rate expires, any penalty rate that applies upon the occurrence of specific events (such as a late payment), or any fixed APR option for a home equity line of credit;
  - b. For credit cards (other than a credit card used to access a home equity line of credit or a charge card), the APR that applies for purchases. For credit cards without a purchase APR, "material terms" means the APR that varies based on consumer report information and that has the most significant financial impact on consumers;
  - c. For closed-end credit, the APR required to be disclosed prior to consummation under the closed-end provisions of Regulation Z; and
  - d. For credit that does not have an APR, the financial term that varies based on consumer report information and that has the most significant financial impact on consumers, such as an annual membership fee for a charge card.
2. "Materially less favorable" means, generally, that the cost of credit to a consumer would be significantly greater than the cost of credit to another consumer from or through the same creditor. Relevant factors in determining the significance of a difference in cost include the type of credit product, the term of the credit extension, and the extent of the difference.

General requirements (12 CFR 222.72-73)

A financial institution must provide to a consumer a notice ("risk-based pricing notice") in the form and manner prescribed by the regulation if:

1. the institution uses a consumer report in connection with an application for, or a grant, extension, or other provision of, credit to a consumer for personal, family, or household purposes; and
2. based in whole or in part on the consumer report, the institution grants, extends, or otherwise provides credit to that consumer on material terms that are materially less favorable than the most favorable material terms available to a substantial proportion of consumers from that institution.

The obligation to provide the notice applies to the creditor to whom the obligation is initially payable, i.e. the original creditor. This interpretation excludes brokers and other intermediaries who do not themselves grant, extend, or provide credit to consumers. See preamble to the final regulation (75 FR at 2730 - 2731).

Determination of which consumers must receive notice (12 CFR 222.72(b)). A financial institution may determine, on a case-by-case basis, whether a consumer has received material terms that are materially less favorable by comparing the material terms offered to the consumer to the material terms offered to other consumers for a specific type of credit product. A "specific type of credit product" means one or more credit products with similar features that are designed for similar purposes. Examples include student loans, unsecured credit cards, secured credit cards, new automobile loans, used automobile loans, fixed-rate mortgage loans, and variable-rate mortgage loans.

Because making such a direct comparison between consumers may not be operationally feasible, the rules provide the two alternative methods, a credit score proxy method and a tiered pricing method, both of which are described as follows:

1. Credit score proxy method (12 CFR 222.72(b)(1)). If a creditor uses credit scores to set the material terms of credit, the creditor may determine a cutoff score that represents the point at which approximately 40 percent of its consumers have higher credit scores and 60 percent of its consumers have lower credit scores.

The creditor may then provide a risk-based pricing notice to each consumer who has a credit score lower than the cutoff score.

Credit Score Proxy Example

The number of all, or a representative sample of, consumers to whom the institution granted credit for a specific type of credit product	10,000
40 percent of consumers	4,000
Credit scores of the 4,000 consumers with the highest credit scores	700 or higher
Cutoff score	700
Credit scores of those consumers to whom the creditor must provide a risk-based pricing notice, because the consumers' scores are lower than cutoff score	699 or lower

Alternative to 40/60 cutoff. The regulation provides an alternative to the 40/60 cutoff discussed above for situations where more than 40 percent of consumers (e.g., 80 percent) receive the most favorable material terms. In such situations, the creditor may set a different cutoff score based on its historical experience. The cutoff score would be set at a point at which the approximate percentage of consumers who historically have received the most favorable material terms based on their credit score would not receive a notice in the future. Under this alternative, the risk-based pricing notices would be provided to the approximate percentage of consumers who historically have been granted credit on material terms other than the most favorable terms.

For example, based on a sample of credit extended in the past six months, a creditor may determine that approximately 80 percent of its consumers received credit at its lowest APR (i.e., the most favorable material terms), and 20 percent of its consumers received credit at a higher APR (i.e., material terms other than the most favorable). Approximately 80 percent of the sampled consumers had a credit score at or above 750, and 20 percent had a credit score below 750. As a result, the card issuer could select 750 as its cutoff score. Consumers who have credit scores lower than 750 would receive the risk-based pricing notice. See preamble to the final regulation (75 FR at 2733).

Recalculation. An institution must recalculate the score no less than every two years.

Specific type of product. A financial institution must calculate the cutoff score by considering the credit scores of all, or a representative sample of, the consumers who have received credit for a specific type of credit product.

New entrants or new products. For new entrants into the credit business or for new products subject to risk-based pricing, a financial institution may determine the cutoff score based on information from market research or other third-party sources. For a newly acquired credit portfolio, a financial institution may determine the cutoff score from information obtained from the party from which it acquired the portfolio. The institution must recalculate the cutoff score using the scores of its own consumers within one year after it begins using a score derived from market research, a third-party, or the party from which it acquired the portfolio. If, within that one year, it has not granted credit to a sufficient number of new consumers, thus preventing it from having sufficient data with which to recalculate a cut-off score based on the credit scores of its own consumers, it may continue to use the original cutoff score. However, within two years, it must calculate its own cutoff score if it has granted credit to some new consumers within those two years.

Use of multiple credit scores. For a financial institution that generally uses two or more credit scores to set material credit terms, the institution must determine the cutoff score using the same method used to evaluate multiple scores when making credit decisions (for example, using an average credit score). If the institution does not consistently use the same method for evaluating multiple scores, the institution must use a reasonable means. For example, the institution may use any one of the methods that the institution ordinarily uses or the average credit score of each consumer to calculate the credit score by a reasonable means.

No credit score available for a consumer. If no credit score is available for a consumer, a financial institution must assume that it is granting credit on materially less favorable terms and thus must provide a risk-based pricing notice to the consumer.

2. Tiered pricing method (12 CFR 222.72(b)(2)). If a financial institution sets the material terms of credit by assigning each consumer to one of a discrete number of pricing tiers for a specific type of credit product, based in whole or in part on a consumer report, the institution may provide a risk-based pricing notice to each consumer who is not assigned to the top pricing tier or tiers.

If the financial institution uses four or fewer pricing tiers, it complies by providing risk-based pricing notices to all consumers who do not qualify for the top, best-priced tier. If the institution uses five or more pricing tiers, it complies by providing the notices to all consumers who do not qualify for the two top, best-priced tiers and any other tier that, combined with the top two tiers, equal no less than the top 30 percent and no more than the top 40 percent of the total number of tiers.

Tiered Pricing Example

Four or fewer tiers
Top tier = best rate	APR	Notice requirement
Tier 1 (top)	8%	No risk-based pricing notice required.
Tier 2	10%	Risk-based pricing notice required for Tiers 2, 3 and 4.
Tier 3	12%
Tier 4	14%
Five or more tiers (5 tiers)
Top tier = best rate	APR
Tier 1 (top)	8%	No risk-based pricing notice required for top 30% to 40% of tiers.
Tier 2	10%	Top two tiers comprise 2 out of 5 (40%) of the number of tiers.
Tier 3	12%	Risk-based notices required for Tiers 3-5.
Tier 4	14%
Tier 5	16%
Five or more tiers (9 tiers)
Top tier = best rate	APR
Tier 1 (top)	8%	No risk-based pricing notice required for top 30% to 40% of tiers.
Tier 2	10%	Top three tiers comprise 3 out of 9 (33%) of the number of tiers.
Tier 3	12%
Tier 4	14%	Risk-based notices required for Tiers 4-9.
Tier 5	16%
Tier 6	18%
Tier 7	20%
Tier 8	22%
Tier 9	24%

Application to credit card issuers (12 CFR 222.72(c)). A credit card issuer may use any of the methods in 12 CFR 222.72(b) to identify consumers to whom it must provide a risk-based pricing notice. Alternatively, the card issuer may provide the notice when:

- (a) a consumer applies for a credit card in connection with an application program or in response to a solicitation, and more than one purchase APR may apply under the program or solicitation, and
- (b) based in whole or in part on a consumer report, the credit card is issued to a consumer with an APR that is higher than the lowest APR available in connection with the application or solicitation.

The risk-based pricing requirements do not apply to a card issuer if the credit card program offers only a single annual APR (other than temporary initial rates or penalty rates) or if the issuer offers the consumer the lowest possible APR under the credit card program.

Content of the notice (12 CFR 222.73(a)(1)). The risk-based pricing notice must include:

1. a statement that a consumer report (or credit report) includes information about the consumer's credit history and the type of information included in that history;
2. a statement that the consumer is encouraged to verify the accuracy of the information contained in the consumer report and has the right to dispute any inaccurate information in the report;
3. the identity of each consumer reporting agency that furnished a consumer report used in the credit decision;
4. a statement that federal law gives the consumer the right to obtain a copy of a consumer report from the consumer reporting agency or agencies identified in the notice without charge for 60 days after receipt of the notice;
5. a statement informing the consumer how to obtain a consumer report from the consumer reporting agency or agencies identified in the notice and providing contact information (including a toll-free telephone number, where applicable) specified by the consumer reporting agency or agencies;
6. a statement directing consumers to the web sites of the Federal Reserve Board and Federal Trade Commission to obtain more information about consumer reports;
7. a statement that the terms offered, such as the APR, have been set based on information from a consumer report; and
8. a statement that the terms offered may be less favorable than the terms offered to consumers with better credit histories.

See Appendix H-1 of the regulation for a model form for the risk-based pricing notice.

Account Review (12 CFR 222.72(d)). Generally, creditors must provide an account review risk-based pricing notice to the consumer if the creditor, based in whole or in part on a consumer report, increases the consumer's APR after a review of the consumer's account, unless one of the exceptions in 12 CFR 222.74(a), (b), or (c) applies (for example, the creditor provides an adverse action notice).

Content of account review risk-based pricing notice (12 CFR 222.73(a)(2)). The account review risk-based pricing notice must include:

1. a statement that a consumer report (or credit report) includes information about the consumer's credit history and the type of information included in that history;
2. a statement that the consumer is encouraged to verify the accuracy of the information contained in the consumer report and has the right to dispute any inaccurate information in the report;
3. the identity of each consumer reporting agency that furnished a consumer report used in the account review;
4. a statement that federal law gives the consumer the right to obtain a copy of a consumer report from the consumer reporting agency or agencies identified in the notice without charge for 60 days after receipt of the notice;
5. a statement informing the consumer how to obtain a consumer report from the consumer reporting agency or agencies identified in the notice and providing contact information (including a toll-free telephone number, where applicable) specified by the consumer reporting agency or agencies;
6. a statement directing consumers to the web sites of the Federal Reserve Board and Federal Trade Commission to obtain more information about consumer reports;
7. a statement that the financial institution has conducted a review of the account using information from a consumer report; and
8. a statement that as a result of the review, the APR on the account has been increased based on information from a consumer report.

NOTE: Items 1 through 6 for account review risk-based pricing notice are substantially the same as items 1 through 6 for the risk-based pricing notice. Only the last two items in each list are different.

See Appendix H-2 of the regulation for a model form for the account review risk-based pricing notice.

Form of the notice (12 CFR 222.73(b)). The risk-based pricing notices and the account review risk-based pricing notices must be clear and conspicuous and provided to the consumer in oral, written, or electronic form. Creditors are deemed to be in compliance with the disclosure requirements through use of the optional, applicable model forms, found in Appendix H of the regulation.

Timing (12 CFR 222.73(c)). The timing requirement depends on the specific type of credit transaction as specified below:

- For closed-end credit, a risk-based pricing notice must be provided to the consumer after the decision to approve a credit request is communicated to the consumer, but before consummation of the transaction.
- For open-end credit, the notice must be provided after the decision to grant credit is communicated to the consumer, but before the first transaction under the plan has been made.
- For account reviews, the notice must be provided at the time that the decision to increase the APR is communicated to the consumer. If no notice of the increase in the APR is provided to the consumer prior to the effective date of the APR change, the notice must be provided no later than five days after the effective date of the APR change.
- For automobile lending transactions made through an auto dealer that is unaffiliated with the institution, the institution may provide a risk-based pricing notice in the time periods described above for closed-end credit. Alternatively, the institution may arrange to have the auto dealer provide a risk-based pricing notice to the consumer on its behalf within these time periods and maintain reasonable policies and procedures to verify that the auto dealer provides the notices to consumers within the applicable time periods.
- For instant credit that is granted under an open-end credit plan to a consumer in person or by telephone, the risk-based pricing notice may be provided at the earlier of:
  - The time of the first mailing to the consumer after the decision is made to approve the credit, such as in a mailing containing the account agreement or a credit card; or
  - Within 30 days after the decision to approve the credit.

Exceptions (12 CFR 222.74)

The rules contain a number of exceptions to the risk-based pricing notice requirement, as follows:

1. when a consumer applies for specific terms of credit, and receives them, unless those terms were specified by the creditor using a consumer report after the consumer applied for the credit and after the creditor obtained the consumer report (12 CFR 222.74(a));
2. when a creditor provides a notice of adverse action (12 CFR 222.74(b));
3. when a creditor makes a firm offer of credit in a prescreened solicitation (12 CFR 222.74(c));
4. when an institution generally provides a credit score disclosure to each consumer that requests a loan that is or will be secured by residential real property (12 CFR 222.74(d));
5. when an institution generally provides a credit score disclosure to each consumer that requests a loan that is not or will not be secured by residential real property (12 CFR 222.74(e));
6. when an institution, which otherwise provides credit score disclosures to consumers that request loans, provides a disclosure about credit scores when no credit score is available (12 CFR 222.74(f)).

The regulation contains specific disclosure requirements for Sections 222.74(d)-(f) exceptions, as discussed below.

Section 222.74(d) exception - credit score disclosure for loans secured by residential real property (12 CFR 222.74(d)). An institution is not required to provide a risk-based pricing notice to a consumer under Sections 222.72(a) or (c) if:

1. The consumer requests from an institution an extension of credit that is or will be secured by one to four units of residential real property; and
2. The institution generally provides to each consumer that requests such an extension of credit a notice that contains the following:
  - a. A statement that a consumer report (or credit report) is a record of the consumer's credit history and includes information about whether the consumer pays his or her obligations on time and how much the consumer owes to creditors;
  - b. A statement that a credit score is a number that takes into account information in a consumer report and that a credit score can change over time to reflect changes in the consumer's credit history;
  - c. A statement that the consumer's credit score can affect whether the consumer can obtain credit and what the cost of that credit will be;

- d. A statement that the consumer is encouraged to verify the accuracy of the information contained in the consumer report and has the right to dispute any inaccurate information in the report;
- e. A statement that federal law gives the consumer the right to obtain copies of his or her consumer reports directly from the consumer reporting agencies, including a free report from each of the nationwide consumer reporting agencies once during any 12-month period;
- f. Contact information for the centralized source from which consumers may obtain their free annual consumer reports;
- g. A statement directing consumers to the web sites of the Federal Reserve Board and Federal Trade Commission to obtain more information about consumer reports;
- h. The information required to be disclosed to the consumer in Section 609(g) of the FCRA, and as described in Module 3 of these examination procedures, under “Disclosure of Credit Scores by Certain Mortgage Lenders (FCRA), Section 609(g)”; and
- i. The distribution of credit scores among consumers who are scored under the same scoring model that is used to generate the consumer’s credit score. The distribution must:
  - (i) Use the same scale as that of the credit score provided to the consumer, and
  - (ii) Be presented:
    - in the form of a bar graph containing a minimum of six bars that illustrates the percentage of consumers with credit scores within the range of scores reflected in each bar,
    - by other clear and readily understandable graphical means, or
    - in a clear and readily understandable statement informing the consumer how his or her credit score compares to the scores of other consumers.

The presentation may use a graph or statement obtained from the entity providing the credit score if it meets these requirements.

Form of the notice. The Section 222.74(d) notice must be:

- a. Clear and conspicuous;
- b. Provided on or with the notice required by

Section 609(g) of the FCRA;

- c. Segregated from other information provided to the consumer, except for the notice required by Section 609(g) of the FCRA; and
- d. Provided to the consumer in writing and in a form that the consumer may keep.

Timing. The Section 222.74(d) notice must be provided to the consumer at the same time as the disclosure required by Section 609(g) of the FCRA is provided to the consumer, which must be provided as soon as reasonably practicable after the credit score has been obtained. In any event, the Section 222.74(d) notice must be provided at or before consummation in the case of closed-end credit or before the first transaction is made under an open-end credit plan.

Content of the notice when using multiple credit scores. When an institution obtains two or more credit scores from consumer reporting agencies in setting material terms of credit, the content of the Section 222.74(d) notice varies depending upon whether the institution only relies upon one of the credit scores or relies upon multiple credit scores.

- a. If an institution only relies upon one of those credit scores in setting the material terms of credit granted, extended, or otherwise provided to a consumer (for example, by using the low, middle, high, or most recent score), the notice must include that credit score and the other information required by Section 222.74(d).
- b. If an institution relies upon multiple credit scores in setting the material terms of credit granted, extended, or otherwise provided to a consumer (for example, by computing the average of all the credit scores obtained), the notice must include one of those credit scores and the other information required by Section 222.74(d).

At the institution’s option, the notice may include more than one credit score, along with the additional information required by Section 222.74(d) for each credit score disclosed. Examples.

- a. An institution uses consumer reports to set the material terms of mortgage credit granted, extended, or provided to consumers and regularly requests credit scores from several consumer reporting agencies. It relies upon the low score when determining the material terms it will offer to the consumer. The institution must disclose the low score in the Section 222.74(d) notice.
- b. An institution uses consumer reports to set the material terms of mortgage credit granted, extended, or provided to consumers and regularly requests credit scores from several consumer reporting agencies. The institution takes an average of all of the credit scores obtained in order to determine the material terms it will offer to the consumer, and thus relies upon all of the credit scores that it receives. The institution may choose one of these scores to include in the Section 222.74(d) notice.

Model form. Appendix H-3 of the regulation contains a model form of the Section 222.74(d) notice that is consolidated with the notice required by Section 609(g) of the FCRA. While use of the model form is optional, appropriate use of Model Form H-3 is deemed to comply with the requirements of Section 222.74(d).

Section 222.74(e) exception - credit score disclosure for loans not secured by residential real property (12 CFR 222.74(e)). An institution is not required to provide a risk-based pricing notice to a consumer under Section 222.72(a) or (c) if:

1. The consumer requests from an institution an extension of credit that is not or will not be secured by one to four units of residential real property; and
2. The institution provides to each consumer that requests such an extension of credit a notice that contains the following:
  - a. A statement that a consumer report (or credit report) is a record of the consumer's credit history and includes information about whether the consumer pays his or her obligations on time and how much the consumer owes to creditors;
  - b. A statement that a credit score is a number that takes into account information in a consumer report and that a credit score can change over time to reflect changes in the consumer's credit history;
  - c. A statement that the consumer's credit score can affect whether the consumer can obtain credit and what the cost of that credit will be;
  - d. A statement that the consumer is encouraged to verify the accuracy of the information contained in the consumer report and has the right to dispute any inaccurate information in the report;
  - e. A statement that federal law gives the consumer the right to obtain copies of his or her consumer reports directly from the consumer reporting agencies, including a free report from each of the nationwide consumer reporting agencies once during any 12-month period;
  - f. Contact information for the centralized source from which consumers may obtain their free annual consumer reports;

- g. A statement directing consumers to the web sites of the Federal Reserve Board and Federal Trade Commission to obtain more information about consumer reports;
- h. The current credit score of the consumer or the most recent credit score of the consumer that was previously calculated by the consumer reporting agency for a purpose related to the extension of credit;
- i. The distribution of credit scores among consumers who are scored under the same scoring model that is used to generate the consumer's credit score. The distribution must:
  - (i) Use the same scale as that of the credit score provided to the consumer, and
  - (ii) Be presented:
    - (a) in the form of a bar graph containing a minimum of six bars that illustrates the percentage of consumers with credit scores within the range of scores reflected in each bar,
    - (b) by other clear and readily understandable graphical means, or
    - (c) in a clear and readily understandable statement informing the consumer how his or her credit score compares to the scores of other consumers.

The presentation may use a graph or statement obtained from the entity providing the credit score if it meets these requirements.
- j. The range of possible credit scores under the model used to generate the credit score;
- k. The date on which the credit score was created; and
- l. The name of the consumer reporting agency or other person that provided the credit score.

NOTE: Items a, b, c, d, e, f, g, and i for the Section 222.74(e) notice are the same as items a, b, c, d, e, f, g, and i for the Section 222.74(d) notice.

Form of the notice. The Section 222.74(e) notice must be:

- a. Clear and conspicuous;
- b. Segregated from other information provided to the consumer; and
- c. Provided to the consumer in writing and in a form that the consumer may keep.

Timing. The Section 222.74(e) notice generally must be provided to the consumer as soon as reasonably practicable after the credit score has been obtained, but in any event at or before consummation in the case of closed-end credit or before the first transaction is made under an open-end credit plan. The notice may alternatively be provided in the following manner:

- For automobile lending transactions made through an auto dealer that is unaffiliated with the institution, the institution may provide a Section 222.74(e) notice in the time periods described above. Alternatively, the institution may arrange to have the auto dealer provide a Section 222.74(e) notice to the consumer on its behalf within these time periods and maintain reasonable policies and procedures to verify that the auto dealer provides the notice to the consumer within the applicable time periods. If the institution arranges to have the auto dealer provide a Section 222.74(e) notice, the institution complies if the consumer receives a notice containing a credit score obtained by the dealer, even if a different credit score is obtained and used by the institution. (12 CFR 222.73(c)(2))
- For instant credit that is granted under an open-end credit plan to a consumer in person or by telephone, the Section 222.74(e) notice may be provided at the earlier of:
  - The time of the first mailing to the consumer after the decision is made to approve the credit, such as in a mailing containing the account agreement or a credit card; or
  - Within 30 days after the decision to approve the credit. 12 CFR 222.73(c)(3))

Multiple credit scores. When an institution obtains two or more credit scores from consumer reporting agencies in setting material terms of credit, the content of the Section 222.74(e) notice varies depending if the institution relies upon only one of the credit scores or relies upon multiple credit scores. These disclosures requirements are the same as those for the Section 222.74(d) notices, as described previously.

Model form. Appendix H-4 of the regulation contains a model form of the Section 222.74(e) notice. While use of the model form is optional, appropriate use of Model Form H-4 is deemed to comply with the requirements of Section 222.74(e).

Section 222.74(f) exception - credit score not available (12 CFR 222.74(f)). An institution is not required to provide a risk-based pricing notice to a consumer under Section 222.72(a) or (c) if the institution:

1. Regularly obtains credit scores from a consumer reporting agency and provides credit score disclosures to consumers in accordance with Sections 222.74(d) or (e), but a credit score is not available from the consumer reporting agency from which the institution regularly obtains credit scores for a consumer to whom the institution grants, extends, or provides credit;
2. Does not obtain a credit score from another consumer reporting agency in connection with granting, extending, or providing credit to the consumer; and
3. Provides to the consumer a notice that contains the following:
  - a. A statement that a consumer report (or credit report) includes information about the consumer's credit history and the type of information included in that history;
  - b. A statement that a credit score is a number that takes into account information in a consumer report and that a credit score can change over time in response to changes in the consumer's credit history;
  - c. A statement that credit scores are important because consumers with higher credit scores generally obtain more favorable credit terms;
  - d. A statement that not having a credit score can affect whether the consumer can obtain credit and what the cost of that credit will be;
  - e. A statement that a credit score about the consumer was not available from a consumer reporting agency, which must be identified by name, generally due to insufficient information regarding the consumer's credit history;
  - f. A statement that the consumer is encouraged to verify the accuracy of the information contained in the consumer report and has the right to dispute any inaccurate information in the consumer report;
  - g. A statement that federal law gives the consumer the right to obtain copies of his or her consumer reports directly from the consumer reporting agencies, including a free consumer report from each of the nationwide consumer reporting agencies

- once during any 12-month period;
- h. The contact information for the centralized source from which consumers may obtain their free annual consumer reports; and
  - i. A statement directing consumers to the web sites of the Federal Reserve Board and Federal Trade Commission to obtain more information about consumer reports.

NOTE: Items b, f, g, h, and i for the Section 222.74(f) notice are the same as items b, f, g, h, and i for the Sections 222.74(d) and (e) notices.

Example. An institution uses consumer reports to set the material terms of non-mortgage credit granted, extended, or provided to consumers and regularly requests credit scores from a particular consumer reporting agency. As required by Section 222.74(e), the institution provides those credit scores and additional information to consumers. The consumer reporting agency provides to the institution a consumer report on a particular consumer that contains one trade line, but does not provide the institution with a credit score on that consumer. If the institution does not obtain a credit score from another consumer reporting agency and, based in whole or in part on information in a consumer report, grants, extends, or provides credit to the consumer, the institution may provide the Section 222.74(f) notice. If, however, the institution obtains a credit score from another consumer reporting agency, the institution may not rely upon the Section 222.74(f) exception, but must satisfy the requirements of Section 222.74(e).

Form of the notice. The Section 222.74(f) notice must be:

- a. Clear and conspicuous;
- b. Segregated from other information provided to the consumer; and
- c. Provided to the consumer in writing and in a form that the consumer may keep.

Timing. The Section 222.74(f) notice generally must be provided to the consumer as soon as reasonably practicable after the institution has requested the credit score, but in any event not later than consummation of a transaction in the case of closed-end credit or when the first transaction is made under an open-end credit plan. The notice may alternatively be provided in the following manner:

- For automobile lending transactions made through an auto dealer that is unaffiliated with the institution, the institution may provide a Section 222.74(f) notice in the time periods described above. Alternatively, the institution may arrange to have the auto dealer provide a Section 222.74(f) notice to the consumer on its behalf within these time periods and maintain reasonable policies and procedures to verify that the auto dealer provides the notice to the consumer within the applicable time periods. 12 CFR 222.73(c)(2))

- For instant credit that is granted under an open-end credit plan to a consumer in person or by telephone, the Section 222.74(f) notice may be provided at the earlier of:
  - The time of the first mailing to the consumer after the decision is made to approve the credit, such as in a mailing containing the account agreement or a credit card; or
  - Within 30 days after the decision to approve the credit. 12 CFR 222.73(c)(3))

Model form. Appendix H-5 of the regulation contains a model form of the Section 222.74(f) notice. While use of the model form is optional, appropriate use of Model Form H-5 is deemed to comply with the requirements of Section 222.74(f).

Rules of Construction (12 CFR 222.75)

The rules clarify that, in general, only one risk-based pricing notice or one credit score exception notice is required to be provided per credit extension (however, an account review would still be required, if applicable). In a transaction involving two or more consumers, a financial institution must provide a risk-based pricing notice to each consumer. If the consumers have the same address, a financial institution may satisfy the requirements by providing a single risk-based pricing notice addressed to both consumers. For credit score disclosure exception notices, whether the consumers have the same address or not, the financial institution must provide a separate notice to each consumer.

Appendix H

Appendix H contains five optional model forms that may be used to comply with the regulatory requirements. The five model forms are:

1. H-1 Model form for risk-based pricing notice
2. H-2 Model form for account review risk-based pricing notice

3. H-3 Model form for credit score disclosure exception for credit secured by one to four units of residential real property
4. H-4 Model form for credit score disclosure exception for loans not secured by residential real property
5. H-5 Model form for credit score disclosure exception for loans where credit score is not available

Use of the model forms is not required. A financial institution may change the forms by rearranging the format or by making technical modifications to the language of the forms. However, any change may not be so extensive as to materially affect the substance, clarity, comprehensibility, or meaningful sequence of the forms. Institutions making such extensive revisions would lose the “safe harbor” that Appendix H provides. Examples of acceptable changes are provided in Appendix H to the regulation.

Examination Procedures

---

Use of Consumer Reports for Employment Purposes (FCRA, Section 604(b))

1. Determine whether the financial institution obtains consumer reports on current or prospective employees.
2. Assess the financial institution's policies and procedures to determine if appropriate disclosures are provided to current and prospective employees when consumer reports are obtained for employment purposes, including in situations in which adverse actions are taken on the basis of consumer report information.
3. If procedural weaknesses or other risks requiring further investigation are noted, review a sample of the disclosures to determine if they are accurate and in compliance with the technical FCRA requirements.

Prescreened Consumer Reports and Opt-Out Notice (FCRA, Sections 604(c) and 615(d); and FTC Regulations, Parts 642 and 698)

1. Determine whether the financial institution obtained and used prescreened consumer reports in connection with offers of credit and/or insurance.
2. Evaluate the institution's policies and procedures to determine if a list of the criteria used for prescreened offers, including all post-application criteria, is maintained in the institution's files and the criteria are applied consistently when consumers respond to the offers.
3. Determine whether written solicitations contain the required disclosures of consumers' right to opt out of prescreened solicitations and comply with all requirements applicable at the time of the offer.
4. If procedural weaknesses or other risks requiring further investigation are noted, obtain and review a sample of approved and denied responses to the offers to ensure that criteria were appropriately applied.

Truncation of Credit and Debit Card Account Numbers (FCRA, Section 605(g))

1. Determine whether the financial institution's policies and procedures ensure that electronically generated receipts from automated teller machines and point-of-sale terminals or other machines do not contain more than the last five digits of the card number and do not contain the expiration date.

2. For ATMs and POS terminals or other machines that were put into operation before January 1, 2005, determine if the institution has brought the terminals into compliance or has begun a plan to ensure that these terminals comply by the mandatory compliance date of December 4, 2006.
3. If procedural weaknesses or other risks requiring further investigation are noted, review samples of actual receipts to ensure compliance.

Disclosure of Credit Scores by Certain Mortgage Lenders (FCRA, Section 609(g))

1. Determine whether the financial institution uses credit scores in connection with applications for closed-end or open-end loans secured by one- to four-family residential real property.
2. Evaluate the institution's policies and procedures to determine whether accurate disclosures are provided to applicants as soon as is reasonably practicable after using credit scores.
3. If procedural weaknesses or other risks requiring further investigation are noted, review a sample of disclosures given to home loan applicants to determine technical compliance with the requirements.

Adverse Action Disclosures (FCRA, Sections 615(a) and (b))

1. Determine whether the financial institution's policies and procedures adequately ensure that appropriate disclosures are provided when adverse action is taken against consumers on the basis of information received from consumer reporting agencies, other third parties, and/or affiliates.
2. Review the financial institution's policies and procedures for responding to requests for information in response to these adverse action notices.
3. If procedural weaknesses or other risks requiring further investigation are noted, review a sample of adverse action notices to determine if they are accurate and in technical compliance.

Debt Collector Communications concerning Identity Theft (FCRA, Section 615(g))

1. Determine whether the financial institution collects debts for third parties.
2. Determine whether the financial institution has policies and procedures to ensure that the third parties are notified if the financial institution obtains any information that may indicate that the debt in question is the result of fraud or identity theft.
3. Determine if the institution has effective policies and procedures for providing information to consumers to whom the fraudulent debts relate.
4. If procedural weaknesses or other risks requiring further investigation are noted, review a sample of instances in which consumers have alleged identity theft and requested information related to transactions to determine if all of the appropriate information was provided to the consumers.

Duties of Users Regarding Risk-Based Pricing (FCRA, Section 615(h); and Regulation V, Subpart H)

1. Determine whether the financial institution uses consumer report information in consumer credit decisions.

If yes, determine whether the institution uses such information to provide credit on terms that are “materially less favorable” than the most favorable material terms available to a substantial proportion of its consumers. Relevant factors in determining the significance of differences in the cost of credit include the type of credit product, the term of the credit extension, and the extent of the difference.

If “yes,” the financial institution is subject to the risk-based pricing regulations.

2. Determine whether the financial institution provides a risk-based pricing notice to a consumer (12 CFR 222.72(a)). If it does, proceed to step #3. If the institution does not provide a risk-based pricing notice, proceed to step #5 to determine whether an exception applies (12 CFR 222.74).
3. Determine the method the financial institution uses to identify consumers who must receive a risk-based pricing notice and whether the method complies with the regulation (12 CFR 222.72(b)).
  - a. For institutions that use the direct comparison method (12 CFR 222.72(b)), determine whether the institution directly compares the material terms offered to each consumer and the material terms offer to the other consumers for a specific type of credit product.

- b. For institutions that use the credit score proxy method: (12 CFR 222.72(b)(1))
  - i. determine whether the institution calculates the cutoff score by considering the credit scores of all, or a representative sample, of consumers who have received credit for a specific type of credit product;
  - ii. determine whether the institution recalculates the cutoff score no less than every two years;
  - iii. for new entrants into the credit business, for new products subject to risk-based pricing, or for acquired credit portfolios, determine whether the institution recalculates the cutoff scores within time periods specified in the regulation;
  - iv. for institutions using more than one credit score to set material terms, determine whether the institution establishes a cutoff score according to the methods specified in the regulation; and
  - v. if no credit score is available for a consumer, determine whether the institution provides the consumer a risk-based pricing notice.
- c. For institutions that use the tiered pricing method: (12 CFR 222.72(b)(2))
  - i. when four or fewer pricing tiers are used, determine if the institution sends risk-based pricing notices to consumers who do not qualify for the top, best-priced tier; or
  - ii. when five or more pricing tiers are used, determine if the institution provides risk-based pricing notices to consumers who do not qualify for the two top, best-priced tiers and any other tier that, combined with the top two tiers, equal no less than the top 30 percent and no more than the top 40 percent of the total number of tiers.
- d. For credit card issuers:
  - i. Determine whether the card issuer uses the credit score proxy method or the tiered pricing method to identify consumers to whom it must provide a risk-based pricing notice.

- ii. If the institution does not use the credit score proxy method or the tiered pricing method, determine whether the card issuer uses the following method as permitted by 12 CFR 222.72(c) to identify consumers to whom it must provide a risk-based pricing notice:
    - (a) A consumer applies for a credit card either in connection with an application program, such as a direct-mail offer or a take-one application, or in response to a solicitation under 12 CFR 226.5a, and more than a single possible purchase annual percentage rate may apply under the program or solicitation; and
    - (b) Based in whole or in part on a consumer report, the credit card issuer provides a credit card to the consumer with a purchase APR that is greater than the lowest purchase APR available in connection with the application or solicitation.
  - iii. Determine whether the card issuer provides a risk-based pricing notice to each consumer that is provided a credit card with a purchase APR greater than the lowest purchase APR available under the program or solicitation.
4. Determine whether the risk based pricing notice contains: (12 CFR 222.73(a)(1))
- a. a statement that a consumer report (or credit report) includes information about the consumer's credit history and the type of information included in that history;
  - b. a statement that the terms offered, such as the APR, have been set based on information from a consumer report;
  - c. a statement that the terms offered may be less favorable than the terms offered to consumers with better credit histories;
  - d. a statement that the consumer is encouraged to verify the accuracy of the information contained in the consumer report and has the right to dispute any inaccurate information in the report;
  - e. the identity of each consumer reporting agency that furnished a consumer report used in the credit decision;
  - f. a statement that federal law gives the consumer the right to obtain a copy of a consumer report from the consumer reporting agency or agencies identified in the notice without charge for 60 days after receipt of the notice;
  - g. a statement informing the consumer how to obtain a consumer report from the consumer reporting agency or agencies identified in the notice and providing contact information (including a toll-free telephone number, where applicable) specified by the consumer reporting agency or agencies; and
  - h. a statement directing consumers to the web sites of the Federal Reserve Board and Federal Trade Commission to obtain more information about consumer reports.
- Proceed to step #10.
5. If the institution does not provide a risk-based pricing notice, determine if one of the following situations that qualify for a regulatory exception applies: (12 CFR 222.74(a)-(f))
- a. when a consumer applies for specific terms of credit, and receives them, unless those terms were specified by the creditor using a consumer report after the consumer applied for the credit and after the creditor obtained the consumer report;
  - b. when a creditor provides a notice of adverse action;
  - c. when a creditor makes a firm offer of credit in a prescreened solicitation;
  - d. when an institution generally provides a credit score disclosure to each consumer that requests a loan that is or will be secured by residential real property;
  - e. when an institution generally provides a credit score disclosure to each consumer that requests a loan that is not or will not be secured by residential real property;
  - f. when an institution, which otherwise provides credit score disclosures to consumers that request loans, provides a disclosure for when no credit score is available.
6. For institutions that choose to provide a credit score disclosure to consumers that request a loan that is or will be secured by residential real property, determine whether the Section 222.74(d) notice generally is provided to each consumer that requests such an extension of credit and that each notice contains:
- a. A statement that a consumer report (or credit report) is a record of the consumer's credit history and includes information about whether the consumer pays his or her obligations on time and how much the consumer owes to creditors;

- b. A statement that a credit score is a number that takes into account information in a consumer report and that a credit score can change over time to reflect changes in the consumer's credit history; compares to the scores of other consumers.
  - c. A statement that the consumer's credit score can affect whether the consumer can obtain credit and what the cost of that credit will be; The presentation may use a graph or statement obtained from the entity providing the credit score if it meets these requirements.
  - d. A statement that the consumer is encouraged to verify the accuracy of the information contained in the consumer report and has the right to dispute any inaccurate information in the report;
  - e. A statement that federal law gives the consumer the right to obtain copies of his or her consumer reports directly from the consumer reporting agencies, including a free report from each of the nationwide consumer reporting agencies once during any 12-month period;
  - f. Contact information for the centralized source from which consumers may obtain their free annual consumer reports;
  - g. A statement directing consumers to the web sites of the Federal Reserve Board and Federal Trade Commission to obtain more information about consumer reports;
  - h. The information required to be disclosed to the consumer in Section 609(g) of the FCRA, and as described in Module 3 of these examination procedures, under "Disclosure of Credit Scores by Certain Mortgage Lenders (FCRA), Section 609(g)"; and
  - i. The distribution of credit scores among consumers who are scored under the same scoring model that is used to generate the consumer's credit score. The distribution should:
    - i. Use the same scale as that of the credit score provided to the consumer, and
    - ii. Be presented:
      - (a) in the form of a bar graph containing a minimum of six bars that illustrates the percentage of consumers with credit scores within the range of scores reflected in each bar,
      - (b) by other clear and readily understandable graphical means, or
      - (c) in a clear and readily understandable statement informing the consumer how his or her credit score
7. For institutions that choose to provide a credit score disclosure to consumers that request a loan that is not or will not be secured by residential real property, determine whether the Section 222.74(e) notice generally is provided to each consumer that requests such an extension of credit and that each notice contains:
- a. A statement that a consumer report (or credit report) is a record of the consumer's credit history and includes information about whether the consumer pays his or her obligations on time and how much the consumer owes to creditors;
  - b. A statement that a credit score is a number that takes into account information in a consumer report and that a credit score can change over time to reflect changes in the consumer's credit history;
  - c. A statement that the consumer's credit score can affect whether the consumer can obtain credit and what the cost of that credit will be;
  - d. A statement that the consumer is encouraged to verify the accuracy of the information contained in the consumer report and has the right to dispute any inaccurate information in the report;
  - e. A statement that federal law gives the consumer the right to obtain copies of his or her consumer reports directly from the consumer reporting agencies, including a free report from each of the nationwide consumer reporting agencies once during any 12-month period;
  - f. Contact information for the centralized source from which consumers may obtain their free annual consumer reports;
  - g. A statement directing consumers to the web sites of the Federal Reserve Board and Federal Trade Commission to obtain more information about consumer reports;
  - h. The current credit score of the consumer or the most recent credit score of the consumer that was previously calculated by the consumer reporting agency for a purpose related to the extension of credit;
  - i. The distribution of credit scores among consumers who are scored under the same scoring model that is used to generate the consumer's credit score. The distribution should:

- (i) Use the same scale as that of the credit score provided to the consumer, and
  - (ii) Be presented:
    - (a) in the form of a bar graph containing a minimum of six bars that illustrates the percentage of consumers with credit scores within the range of scores reflected in each bar,
    - (b) by other clear and readily understandable graphical means, or
    - (c) in a clear and readily understandable statement informing the consumer how his or her credit score compares to the scores of other consumers.
- The presentation may use a graph or statement obtained from the entity providing the credit score if it meets these requirements;
- j. The range of possible credit scores under the model used to generate the credit score;
  - k. The date on which the credit score was created; and
  - l. The name of the consumer reporting agency or other person that provided the credit score.
8. For institutions that otherwise provide credit score disclosures to consumers that request loans, determine whether the Section 222.74(f) notice is provided to the applicable consumers in situations where no credit score is available for the consumer, as required by 222.74(f). Determine whether each notice contains:
- a. A statement that a consumer report (or credit report) includes information about the consumer's credit history and the type of information included in that history;
  - b. A statement that a credit score is a number that takes into account information in a consumer report and that a credit score can change over time in response to changes in the consumer's credit history;
  - c. A statement that credit scores are important because consumers with higher credit scores generally obtain more favorable credit terms;
  - d. A statement that not having a credit score can affect whether the consumer can obtain credit and what the cost of that credit will be;
- e. A statement that a credit score about the consumer was not available from a consumer reporting agency, which must be identified by name, generally due to insufficient information regarding the consumer's credit history;
  - f. A statement that the consumer is encouraged to verify the accuracy of the information contained in the consumer report and has the right to dispute any inaccurate information in the consumer report;
  - g. A statement that federal law gives the consumer the right to obtain copies of his or her consumer reports directly from the consumer reporting agencies, including a free consumer report from each of the nationwide consumer reporting agencies once during any 12-month period;
  - h. The contact information for the centralized source from which consumers may obtain their free annual consumer reports; and
  - i. A statement directing consumers to the web sites of the Federal Reserve Board and Federal Trade Commission to obtain more information about consumer reports.
9. For institutions that provide credit score exception notices and that obtain multiple credit scores in setting material terms of credit, determine whether the score(s) is disclosed in a manner consistent with the regulation: (12 CFR 222.74(d)(4) and .74 (e)(4))
- a. If an institution only relies upon one of those credit scores in setting the material terms of credit granted, extended, or otherwise provided to a consumer (for example, by using the low, middle, high, or most recent score), determine whether the notice includes that credit score and the other information required by Section 222.74(d).
  - b. If an institution relies upon multiple credit scores in setting the material terms of credit granted, extended, or otherwise provided to a consumer (for example, by computing the average of all the credit scores obtained), determine whether the notice includes one of those credit scores and the other information required by Section 222.74(d).
10. Regardless of whether the institution provides risk-based pricing notices or credit score exception notices, if the institution increases the consumer's APR as the result of a review of a consumer's account, determine whether the financial institution provided the consumer with an account review risk-based pricing notice (12 CFR 222.72(d)) if an adverse action notice was not already provided.

11. Determine whether the account review risk-based pricing notice contains: (12 CFR 222.73(a)(2))
  - a. a statement that a consumer report (or credit report) includes information about the consumer's credit history and the type of information included in that history;
  - b. a statement that the consumer is encouraged to verify the accuracy of the information contained in the consumer report and has the right to dispute any inaccurate information in the report;
  - c. the identity of each consumer reporting agency that furnished a consumer report used in the credit decision;
  - d. a statement that federal law gives the consumer the right to obtain a copy of a consumer report from the consumer reporting agency or agencies identified in the notice without charge for 60 days after receipt of the notice;
  - e. a statement that informs the consumer how to obtain a consumer report from the consumer reporting agency or agencies identified in the notice and provides contact information (including a toll-free telephone number, where applicable) specified by the consumer reporting agency or agencies;
  - f. a statement that directs consumers to the web sites of the Federal Reserve Board and Federal Trade Commission to obtain more information about consumer reports;
  - g. a statement that the financial institution has conducted a review of the account using information from a consumer report; and
  - h. a statement that, as a result of the review, the APR on the account has been increased based on information from a consumer report.
12. For all notices, determine whether the notices are clear and conspicuous and comply with the specific format requirements for the notices (12 CFR 222.73(b), .74(d)(2), .74(e)(2), and .74(f)(3)).
13. For all notices, determine whether the notices are provided within the required timeframes: (12 CFR 222.73(c), .74(d)(3), .74(e)(3), and .74(f)(4))

Risk-based pricing notices and account review risk-based pricing notices

- For closed-end credit, the notice generally must be provided to the consumer after the decision to approve a credit request is communicated to the consumer, but before consummation of the transaction.

- For open-end credit, the notice generally must be provided after the decision to grant credit is communicated to the consumer, but before the first transaction under the plan has been made.
- For account reviews, the notice generally must be provided at the time that the decision to increase the APR is communicated to the consumer or no later than five days after the effective date of the change in the APR.

Credit score disclosures for loans secured by residential real property

- The credit score disclosure for loans secured by residential real property must be provided to the consumer at the same time as the disclosure required by Section 609(g) of the FCRA is provided to the consumer. The 609(g) notice must be provided as soon as reasonably practicable after the credit score has been obtained. In any event, the credit score disclosure for loans secured by residential real property must be provided at or before consummation in the case of closed-end credit or before the first transaction is made under an open-end credit plan.

Credit score disclosures for loans not secured by residential real property

- The notice generally must be provided to the consumer as soon as reasonably practicable after the credit score has been obtained, but in any event at or before consummation in the case of closed-end credit or before the first transaction is made under an open-end credit plan.

Credit score exception notices when no credit score is available

- The notice generally must be provided to the consumer as soon as reasonably practicable after the institution has requested the credit score, but in any event not later than consummation of a transaction in the case of closed-end credit or when the first transaction is made under an open-end credit plan.

All notices, except credit score disclosures for loans secured by residential real property

- For automobile lending transactions made through an auto dealer that is unaffiliated with the institution, the institution may provide a notice in the time periods described above. Alternatively, the institution may arrange to have the auto dealer provide a notice to the consumer on its behalf within these time periods and maintain reasonable policies and procedures to verify that the auto dealer provides the notice to the consumer within the applicable time periods. If the institution arranges to have the auto dealer provide a credit score disclosure for loans not secured by residential real property, the institution complies if the consumer receives a notice containing a credit score obtained by the dealer with these time periods, even if a different credit score is obtained and used by the institution.

- For instant credit that is granted under an open-end credit plan to a consumer in person or by telephone, the notice may be provided at the earlier of:
  - The time of the first mailing to the consumer after the decision is made to approve the credit, such as in a mailing containing the account agreement or a credit card; or
  - Within 30 days after the decision to approve the credit.

14. For all notices, determine whether the financial institution follows the rules of construction pertaining to the number of notices provided to the consumer(s) (12 CFR 222.75). In a transaction involving two or more consumers, a financial institution must provide a risk-based notice to each consumer. If the consumers have the same address, a financial institution may satisfy the requirements by providing a single risk-based pricing notice addressed to both consumers. For credit score disclosure exception notices, whether the consumers have the same address or not, the financial institution must provide a separate notice to each consumer.
15. For all notices, determine whether the financial institution uses the model forms in Appendix H of the regulation. If yes, determine that it does not modify the model form so extensively as to affect the substance, clarity, comprehensibility, or meaningful sequence of the forms (Appendix H).

Fair Credit Reporting

Examination Module 4: Duties of Users of Credit Reports and Furnishers of Consumer Information

Overview

The Fair Credit Reporting Act (FCRA) sets forth many responsibilities for financial institutions that use credit reports and furnish information to consumer reporting agencies. Those responsibilities generally concern ensuring the accuracy of the data that are placed in the consumer reporting system. This examination module addresses the various areas associated with users of credit reports and furnishers of information; it does not apply to financial institutions that do not furnish information to consumer reporting agencies.

Duties of Users of Credit Reports Regarding Address Discrepancies (Regulation V, Section 222.82)

Section 605(h)(1) of the Fair Credit Reporting Act requires that, when providing a consumer report to a person that requests the report (a user), a nationwide consumer reporting agency (NCRA) must provide a notice of address discrepancy to the user if the address provided by the user in its request “substantially differs” from the address the NCRA has in the consumer’s file. Section 605(h)(2) requires the federal banking agencies and the National Credit Union Administration (collectively, the Agencies) and the Federal Trade Commission to prescribe regulations providing guidance regarding reasonable policies and procedures that a user of a consumer report should employ when such user has received a notice of address discrepancy. On November 9, 2007, the agencies published final rules in the Federal Register (72 FR 63718) implementing this section.

Definitions

1. Nationwide consumer reporting agency. Section 603(p) defines an NCRA as one that compiles and maintains files on consumers on a nationwide basis and regularly engages in the practice of assembling or evaluating and maintaining the following two pieces of information about consumers residing nationwide for the purpose of furnishing consumer reports to third parties bearing on a consumer’s credit worthiness, credit standing, or credit capacity:
  - a. Public record information, and
  - b. Credit account information from persons who furnish that information regularly and in the ordinary course of business.
2. Notice of address discrepancy (12 CFR

222.82(b)). A “notice of address discrepancy” is a notice sent to a user by an NCRA (section 603(p)) that informs the user of a substantial difference between the address for the consumer that the user provided to request the consumer report and the address(es) in the NCRA’s file for the consumer.

Requirement to Form a Reasonable Belief (12 CFR 222.82(c)).

A user must develop and implement reasonable policies and procedures designed to enable the user to form a reasonable belief that the consumer report relates to the consumer whose report was requested, when the user receives a notice of address discrepancy in connection with a new or existing account.

The rules provide the following examples of reasonable policies and procedures for forming a reasonable belief that a consumer report relates to the consumer whose report was requested:

1. Comparing information in the consumer report with information the user
  - a. Has obtained and used to verify the consumer’s identity as required by the Customer Identification Program rules (31 CFR 103.121);
  - b. Maintains in its records; or
  - c. Obtains from a third party.
2. Verifying the information in the consumer report with the consumer.

Requirement to Furnish a Consumer’s Address to an NCRA (12 CFR 222.82(d)).

A user must develop and implement reasonable policies and procedures for furnishing to the NCRA an address for the consumer that the user has reasonably confirmed is accurate when the user

1. Can form a reasonable belief that the report relates to the consumer whose report was requested;
2. Establishes a continuing relationship with the consumer (that is, in connection with a new account); and
3. Regularly, and in the ordinary course of business, furnishes information to the NCRA that provided the notice of address discrepancy.

A user's policies and procedures for furnishing a consumer's address to an NCRA must require the user to furnish the confirmed address as part of the information it regularly furnishes to the NCRA during the reporting period when it establishes a continuing relationship with the consumer.

The rules also provide the following examples of how a user may reasonably confirm an address is accurate:

1. Verifying the address with the consumer whose report was requested
2. Reviewing its own records
3. Verifying the address through third-party sources or
4. Using other reasonable means

Furnishers of Information—General (FCRA, Section 623 and Regulation V, Section 222.40)

Section 623 of the Fair Credit Reporting Act (FCRA) requires the federal banking agencies (Agencies) and the Federal Trade Commission (FTC) to:

1. Issue guidelines for use by furnishers regarding the accuracy and integrity of the information about consumers that they furnish to consumer reporting agencies (§623(e)(1)(A));
2. Prescribe regulations requiring furnishers to establish reasonable policies and procedures for implementing the guidelines (§623(e)(1)(B)); and
3. Issue regulations identifying the circumstances under which a furnisher must reinvestigate disputes concerning the accuracy of information contained in a consumer report based on a direct request from a consumer (§623(a)(8)).

On July 1, 2009, the Agencies and the FTC published final rules in the Federal Register (74 FR 31484) implementing this section of FCRA.

Definitions (12 CFR 222.41)

The following definitions pertain to the rules governing the furnishers of information to a consumer reporting agency:

1. "Accuracy" means that the information a furnisher provides to a consumer reporting agency about an account or other relationship with the consumer correctly:
  - a. Reflects the terms of and liability for the account or other relationship;
  - b. Reflects the consumer's performance and other conduct with respect to the account or other relationship; and

- c. Identifies the appropriate consumer.
2. "Direct dispute" means a dispute submitted by a consumer directly to a furnisher (including a furnisher that is a debt collector) concerning the accuracy of any information contained in a consumer report and pertaining to an account or other relationship that the furnisher has or had with the consumer.
3. "Furnisher" means an entity that furnishes information relating to consumers to one or more consumer reporting agencies for inclusion in a consumer report. An entity is not a furnisher when it:
  - a. Provides information to a consumer reporting agency solely to obtain a consumer report in accordance with the permissible purposes outlined in sections 604(a) and (f) of the FCRA;
  - b. Is acting as a "consumer reporting agency" as defined in section 603(f) of the FCRA;
  - c. Is a consumer to whom the furnished information pertains; or
  - d. Is a neighbor, friend, or associate of the consumer, or another individual with whom the consumer is acquainted or who may have knowledge about the consumer, and who provides information about the consumer's character, general reputation, personal characteristics, or mode of living in response to a specific request from a consumer reporting agency.
4. "Identity theft" means a fraud committed or attempted using the identifying information of another person without authority. "Identifying information" means any name or number that may be used alone or in conjunction with any other information to identify a specific person (16 CFR 603.2).
5. "Integrity" means that the information a furnisher provides to a consumer reporting agency about an account or other relationship with the consumer:
  - a. Is substantiated by the furnisher's records at the time it is furnished;
  - b. Is furnished in a form and manner that is designed to minimize the likelihood that the information may be incorrectly reflected in a consumer report; and
  - c. Includes information in the furnisher's possession about the account or other relationship that:
    - i. the relevant Agency has determined that the absence of which would likely be materially misleading in evaluating a consumer's creditworthiness, credit standing, credit capacity, character, general reputation, personal characteristics, or mode of living; and

- ii. is specified in the Interagency Guidelines Concerning the Accuracy and Integrity of Information Furnished to Consumer Reporting Agencies (12 CFR 222, Appendix E). Currently, the Guidelines specify the credit limit, if applicable and in the furnisher's possession.

Duties of Furnishers to Provide Accurate Information

Section 623(a) states that a person, including a financial institution, may, but need not, specify an address to which consumers may send notices concerning inaccurate information. If the financial institution specifies such an address, then it may not furnish information relating to a consumer to any consumer reporting agency if (1) the institution has been notified by the consumer, at the specified address, that the information is inaccurate and (2) the information is in fact inaccurate. If the financial institution does not specify an address, then it may not furnish any information relating to a consumer to any consumer reporting agency if it knows or has reasonable cause to believe that the information is inaccurate.

When a financial institution that (regularly and in the ordinary course of business) furnishes information to one or more consumer reporting agencies about its transactions or experiences with any consumer determines that any such information is not complete or accurate, the institution must promptly notify the consumer reporting agency of that determination. Corrections to that information or any additional information necessary to make the information complete and accurate must be provided to the consumer reporting agency. Further, any information that remains incomplete or inaccurate must not thereafter be furnished to the consumer reporting agency.

If the completeness or accuracy of any information furnished by a financial institution to a consumer reporting agency is disputed by a consumer, that financial institution may not furnish the information to any consumer reporting agency without notice that the information is disputed by the consumer.

Reasonable Policies and Procedures Concerning the Accuracy and Integrity of Furnished Information (12 CFR 222.42) and Interagency Guidelines (12 CFR 222, Appendix E)

Each furnisher must establish and implement reasonable written policies and procedures regarding the accuracy and integrity of consumer information that it furnishes to a consumer reporting agency. The policies and procedures must be appropriate to the nature, size, complexity, and scope of each furnisher's activities. In developing its policies and procedures, a furnisher must consider the Interagency Guidelines and may include its existing policies and procedures that are relevant and appropriate. Each furnisher must also review its policies and procedures periodically and update them as necessary to ensure their continued effectiveness. The guideline's recommendations include the following:

- Using standard data reporting formats and standard procedures for compiling and furnishing data, where feasible, such as electronic transmission of information about consumers to consumer reporting agencies;
- Maintaining records for a reasonable period of time, not less than any applicable recordkeeping requirement, in order to substantiate the accuracy of any information furnished about consumers to consumer reporting agencies that is subject to a direct dispute; and
- Training staff that participates in activities related to the furnishing of information about consumers to consumer reporting agencies.

Voluntary Closures of Accounts

Section 623(a)(4) requires that any person, including a financial institution, that (regularly and in the ordinary course of business) furnishes information to a consumer reporting agency regarding a consumer who has a credit account with that institution notify the agency of the voluntary closure of the account by the consumer, in information regularly furnished for the period in which the account is closed.

Notice Involving Delinquent Accounts

Section 623(a)(5) requires that a person, including a financial institution, that furnishes information to a consumer reporting agency about a delinquent account being placed for collection, charged off, or subjected to any similar action, not later than ninety days after furnishing the information to the agency, notify the agency of the month and year of the commencement of the delinquency that immediately preceded the action.

Duties upon Notice of Dispute from a Consumer Reporting Agency

Section 623(b) requires the financial institution to do the following whenever it receives a notice of dispute from a consumer reporting agency regarding the accuracy or completeness of any information provided by the institution to the agency pursuant to FCRA, section 611 (Procedure in Case of Disputed Accuracy):

- Conduct an investigation regarding the disputed information.
- Review all relevant information provided by the consumer reporting agency along with the notice.
- Report the results of the investigation to the consumer reporting agency.
- If the disputed information is found to be incomplete or inaccurate, report those results to all nationwide consumer reporting agencies to which the financial institution previously provided the information.
- If the disputed information is incomplete, inaccurate, or not verifiable by the financial institution, for purposes of reporting to the consumer reporting agency,
  - Modify the item of information,
  - Delete the item of information, or
  - Permanently block the reporting of that item of information.

The investigations, reviews, and reports required to be made must be completed within thirty days. The time period may be extended for fifteen days if a consumer reporting agency receives additional relevant information from the consumer.

Duties upon Notice of a Dispute from a Consumer (Direct Disputes) (12 CFR 222.43)

General rule. A furnisher must conduct a reasonable investigation of a direct dispute (unless exceptions, described later, apply) if the dispute relates to:

1. The consumer's liability for a credit account or other debt with the furnisher, such as direct disputes relating to whether there is or has been identify theft or fraud against the consumer, whether there is individual or joint liability on an account, or whether the consumer is an authorized user of a credit account;
2. The terms of a credit account or other debt with the furnisher, such as, direct disputes relating to the type of account, principal balance, scheduled payment amount on an account, or the amount of the credit limit on an open-end account;
3. The consumer's performance or other conduct concerning an account or other relationship with the furnisher such as, direct disputes relating to the current payment status, high balance, payment date, the payment amount, or the date an account was opened or closed; or

4. Any other information contained in a consumer report regarding an account or other relationship with the furnisher that bears on the consumer's creditworthiness, credit standing, credit capacity, character, general reputation, personal characteristics, or mode of living.

Exceptions. The direct dispute requirements do not apply to a furnisher if the direct dispute relates to:

1. The consumer's identifying information such as name(s), date of birth, Social Security number, telephone number(s), or address(es);
2. The identity of past or present employers;
3. Inquiries or requests for a consumer report;
4. Information derived from public records, such as judgments, bankruptcies, liens, and other legal matters (unless the information was provided by a furnisher with an account or other relationship with the consumer);
5. Information related to fraud alerts or active duty alerts; or
6. Information provided to a consumer reporting agency by another furnisher.

The direct dispute requirements also do not apply if the furnisher has a reasonable belief that the direct dispute is:

1. Submitted by a credit repair organization;
2. Prepared on behalf of the consumer by a credit repair organization; or
3. Submitted on a form supplied to the consumer by a credit repair organization.

Direct Dispute Address. A furnisher is required to investigate a direct dispute only if a consumer submits a dispute notice to the furnisher at:

1. The address provided by a furnisher and listed on a consumer report relating to the consumer;
2. An address clearly and conspicuously specified by the furnisher that is provided to the consumer in writing or electronically (if the consumer has agreed to the electronic delivery of information from the furnisher); or
3. Any business address of the furnisher if the furnisher has not provided a specific address for submitting direct disputes.

Direct Dispute Notice Contents. A dispute notice from a consumer must include:

1. Sufficient information to identify the account or other relationship that is in dispute, such as an

- account number and the name, address, and telephone number of the consumer;
- The specific information that the consumer is disputing and an explanation of the basis for the dispute; and
  - All supporting documentation or other information reasonably required by the furnisher to substantiate the basis of the dispute. This documentation may include, for example, a copy of the relevant portion of the consumer report that contains the allegedly inaccurate information; a police report; a fraud or identity theft affidavit; a court order; or account statements.

Duties of a Furnisher after Receiving a Direct Dispute Notice from a Consumer. After receiving a dispute notice from a consumer, the furnisher must:

- Conduct a reasonable investigation with respect to the disputed information;
- Review all relevant information provided by the consumer with the dispute notice;
- Complete its investigation of the dispute and report the results of the investigation to the consumer before the expiration of the period under section 611(a)(1) of the FCRA (15 U.S.C. 1681i(a)(1)) within which a consumer reporting agency would be required to complete its action if the consumer had elected to dispute the information under that section; and
- If the investigation finds that the information reported was inaccurate, promptly notify each consumer reporting agency to which the furnisher provided inaccurate information of investigation findings and provide to the consumer reporting agency any correction to that information that is necessary to make the information provided by the furnisher accurate.

Frivolous or Irrelevant Disputes. A furnisher is not required to investigate a direct dispute if the furnisher has reasonably determined that the dispute is frivolous or irrelevant. A dispute qualifies as frivolous or irrelevant if:

- The consumer did not provide sufficient information to investigate the disputed information;
- The direct dispute is substantially the same as a dispute previously submitted by or on behalf of the consumer and the dispute is one with respect to which the furnisher has already complied with the statutory or regulatory requirements. However, a direct dispute would not be “substantially the same//” as the one previously submitted if the dispute includes new information required by the regulation to be provided to the furnisher, but that had not previously been provided; or

- The furnisher is not required to investigate the direct dispute because one or more of the exceptions listed in 12 CFR 222.43(b) applies.

Upon making a determination that a dispute is frivolous or irrelevant, the furnisher must notify the consumer of the determination not later than five business days after making the determination, by mail or, if authorized by the consumer for that purpose, by any other means available to the furnisher. The furnisher’s notice that a dispute is frivolous or irrelevant must include the reasons for such determination and identify any information required to investigate the disputed information. The notice may consist of a standardized form describing the general nature of such information.

Prevention of Re-Pollution of Consumer Reports (FCRA, Section 623(a)(6))

Section 623(a)(6) has specific requirements for furnishers of information, including financial institutions, to a consumer reporting agency that receives notice from a consumer reporting agency that the information furnished may be fraudulent as a result of identity theft. FCRA, section 605B, requires consumer reporting agencies to notify furnishers of information, including financial institutions, that the information may be fraudulent as a result of identity theft, that an identity theft report has been filed, and that a block has been requested. Section 623(a)(6) requires financial institutions, upon receiving such notice, to establish and follow reasonable procedures to ensure that this information is not re-reported to the consumer reporting agency, thus “re-polluting” the victim’s consumer report.

FCRA, section 615(f), also prohibits a financial institution from selling or transferring debt resulting from an alleged identity theft.

Negative Information Notice (FCRA, Section 623(a)(7))

Section 623(a)(7) requires financial institutions to provide consumers with a notice either before negative information is provided to a nationwide consumer reporting agency or within thirty days after reporting the negative information.

Financial institutions may provide this disclosure on or with any notice of default, any billing statement, or any other materials provided to the customer, as long as the notice is clear and conspicuous. Institutions may also choose to provide this notice to all customers as an abundance of caution. However, this notice may not be included in the initial disclosures provided under section 127(a) of the Truth in Lending Act.

Negative Information

For these purposes, negative information is any information concerning a customer's delinquencies, late payments, insolvency, or any form of default.

Nationwide Consumer Reporting Agency

FCRA, section 603(p), defines a consumer reporting agency that compiles and maintains files on consumers on a nationwide basis as one that regularly engages in the practice of assembling or evaluating and maintaining the following two pieces of information about consumers residing nationwide, for the purpose of furnishing consumer reports to third parties bearing on a consumer's creditworthiness, credit standing, or credit capacity:

- Public record information
- Credit account information from persons who furnish that information regularly and in the ordinary course of business

Model Notices

As required by the FCRA, the Federal Reserve Board developed the following model notices that financial institutions may use to comply with these requirements. One model notice is to be used when an institution chooses to provide a notice before furnishing negative information. The other is to be used when an institution provides a notice within thirty days after reporting negative information:

- Notice prior to communicating negative information (model B-1). "We may report information about your account to credit bureaus. Late payments, missed payments, or other defaults on your account may be reflected in your credit report."

- Notice within thirty days after communicating negative information (model B-2). "We have told a credit bureau about a late payment, missed payment or other default on your account. This information may be reflected in your credit report."

Use of the model notices is not required; however, proper use of the model notices provides financial institutions with a safe harbor from liability. Financial institutions may make certain changes to the language or format of the model notices without losing the safe harbor from liability provided by the models, but the changes may not be so extensive as to affect the substance, clarity, or meaningful sequence of the language in the models. Institutions making such extensive revisions will lose the safe harbor from liability that the model notices provide. Acceptable changes include, for example,

- Rearranging the order of the references to "late payment(s)" or "missed payment(s)";
- Pluralizing the terms "credit bureau," "credit report," and "account";
- Specifying the particular type of account on which information may be furnished, such as "credit card account"; and
- Rearranging, in model B-1, the phrases "information about your account" and "to credit bureaus" such that it would read "We may report to credit bureaus information about your account."

Fair Credit Reporting—Module 4

Duties of Users of Credit Reports Regarding Address Discrepancies (Regulation V, Section 222.82)

1. Determine whether a user of consumer reports has policies and procedures to recognize notices of address discrepancy that it receives from a nationwide consumer reporting agency (NCRA)<sup>16</sup> in connection with consumer reports.
2. Determine whether a user that receives notices of address discrepancy has policies and procedures to form a reasonable belief that the consumer report relates to the consumer whose report was requested (12 CFR 222.82(c)).

See examples of reasonable policies and procedures “to form a reasonable belief” in 12 CFR 222.82(c)(2).
3. Determine whether a user that receives notices of address discrepancy has policies and procedures in place to furnish to the NCRA an address for the consumer that the user has reasonably confirmed is accurate, if the user
  - a. Can form a reasonable belief that the report relates to the consumer;
  - b. Establishes a continuing relationship with the consumer; and
  - c. Regularly, and in the ordinary course of business, furnishes information to the NCRA (12 CFR 222.82(d)(1)).

See examples of reasonable confirmation methods in 12 CFR 222.82(d)(2).
4. Determine whether the user’s policies and procedures require it to furnish the confirmed address as part of the information it regularly furnishes to an NCRA during the reporting period when it establishes a relationship with the consumer (12 CFR 222.82(d)(3)).
5. If procedural weaknesses or other risks requiring further information are noted, obtain a sample of consumer reports requested by the user from an NCRA that included notices of address discrepancy and determine
  - a. How the user established a reasonable belief that the consumer reports related to the consumers whose reports were requested; and

- b. If a consumer relationship was established,
  - i. Whether the institution furnished a consumer’s address that it reasonably confirmed to the NCRA from which it received the notice of address discrepancy; and
  - ii. Whether it furnished the address in the reporting period during which it established the relationship.

Conclusion: On the basis of examination procedures completed, form a conclusion about the ability of the user’s policies and procedures to meet regulatory requirements for the proper handling of address discrepancies reported by an NCRA.

Furnishers of Information—General (FCRA, Section 623 and Regulation V, Section 222.40)

1. Determine whether the financial institution furnishes consumer information to a consumer reporting agency about an account or other relationship with a consumer. If so, the institution is subject to 12 CFR 222.40.
2. Determine whether the financial institution has established and implemented reasonable policies and procedures regarding the accuracy and integrity of information furnished to a consumer reporting agency (12 CFR 222.42(a)).
3. Determine whether the institution considered the Interagency Guidelines in Appendix E of the regulation when developing its policies and procedures, and incorporated the guidelines as appropriate (12 CFR 222.42(b)).
4. Determine whether the institution reviews its policies and procedures periodically and updates them as necessary to ensure their effectiveness (12 CFR 222.42(c)).
5. If procedural weaknesses or other risks requiring further investigation are noted, such as a high number of complaints from consumers regarding the accuracy of their consumer report information furnished by the financial institution, select a sample of reported items and the corresponding loan or collection file to determine that the institution did the following:
  - a. Did not report information that it knew, or had reasonable cause to believe, was inaccurate (§ 623(a)(1)(A))
  - b. Did not report information to a consumer

<sup>16</sup> An NCRA compiles and maintains files on consumers on a nationwide basis. As of the effective date of the rule (January 1, 2008), there were three such consumer reporting agencies: Experian, Equifax, and TransUnion (section 603(p) of FCRA (15 USC 1681a)).

reporting agency if it was notified by the consumer that the information was inaccurate and the information was, in fact, inaccurate (§ 623(a)(1)(B))

- c. Provided the consumer reporting agency with corrections or additional information to make the information complete and accurate, and thereafter did not send the consumer reporting agency the inaccurate or incomplete information (§ 623(a)(2))
  - d. Furnished a notice to a consumer reporting agency of a dispute in situations in which a consumer disputed the completeness or accuracy of any information the institution furnished, and the institution continued furnishing the information to a consumer reporting agency (§ 623(a)(3))
  - e. Notified the consumer reporting agency of a voluntary account-closing by the consumer, and did so as part of the information regularly furnished for the period in which the account was closed (§ 623(a)(4))
  - f. Notified the consumer reporting agency of the month and year of commencement of a delinquency that immediately preceded the action of placing the delinquent account for collection, charging it off, or similar action. The notification to the agency must be made within ninety days of furnishing information to the agency about a delinquent account being placed for collection, charged off, or subjected to any similar action (§ 623(a)(5))
6. If weaknesses within the financial institution's procedures for investigating errors are revealed, review a sample of notices of disputes received from a consumer reporting agency and determine whether the institution did the following:
- a. Conducted an investigation with respect to the disputed information (§ 623(b)(1)(A))
  - b. Reviewed all relevant information provided by the consumer reporting agency (§ 623(b)(1)(B))
  - c. Reported the results of the investigation to the consumer reporting agency (§ 623(b)(1)(C))
  - d. Reported the results of the investigation to all other nationwide consumer reporting agencies to which the information was furnished, if the investigation found that the reported information was inaccurate or incomplete (§ 623(b)(1)(D))
  - e. Modified, deleted, or blocked the reporting of information that could not be verified
7. Determine whether the institution conducts reasonable investigations of direct disputes from consumers, including a review of all relevant information provided by the consumer (12 CFR 222.43(e)(1) and (2)).

- a. Determine whether the institution completes the investigation and reports the results to the consumer within the required timeframe (12 CFR 222.43(e)(3)).
- b. Determine whether the institution notifies and provides corrected information to the consumer reporting agencies when the results of its investigation find that inaccurate information was furnished to the consumer reporting agencies (12 CFR 222.43(e)(4)).
- c. When the institution finds that a dispute is frivolous or irrelevant, determine whether the institution:
  - i. notifies the consumer within five days after finding the dispute frivolous or irrelevant (12 CFR 222.43(f)(2)), and
  - ii. includes in the consumer notification the reasons for the findings and the information necessary to investigate the disputed information (12 CFR 222.43(f)(3)).

Prevention of Re-Pollution of Consumer Reports (FCRA, Section 623(a)(6))

1. If the financial institution provides information to a consumer reporting agency, review the institution's policies and procedures for ensuring that items of information blocked because of an alleged identity theft are not re-reported to the consumer reporting agency.
2. If weaknesses are noted within the financial institution's policies and procedures, review a sample of notices from a consumer reporting agency of allegedly fraudulent information due to identity theft furnished by the financial institution, to determine whether the institution does not re-report the item to a consumer reporting agency.
3. If procedural weaknesses or other risks requiring further investigation are noted, verify that the financial institution has not sold or transferred a debt that resulted from an alleged identity theft.

Negative Information Notice (FCRA, Section 623(a)(7))

1. If the financial institution provides negative information to a nationwide consumer reporting agency, verify that the institution's policies and procedures ensure that the appropriate notices are provided to customers.
2. If procedural weaknesses or other risks requiring further investigation are noted, review a sample of notices provided to consumers to determine compliance with the technical content and timing requirements.

Examination Module 5: Consumer Alerts and Identity Theft Protections

Overview

The Fair Credit Reporting Act (FCRA) contains several provisions for both consumer reporting agencies and users of consumer reports, including financial institutions, that are designed to help combat identity theft. This module applies to financial institutions that are not consumer reporting agencies but are users of consumer reports. In addition, this module applies to debit and credit card issuers.

There are two primary requirements for users of consumer reports: (1) a user of a consumer report that contains a fraud or active duty alert must take steps to verify the identity of the individual to whom the consumer report relates and (2) a financial institution must disclose certain information when consumers allege that they are the victim of identity theft.

The primary responsibility for card issuers is to assess the validity of address changes before issuing additional or replacement cards.

Fraud and Active Duty Alerts (FCRA, Section 605A(h))

Initial Fraud and Active Duty Alerts

A consumer who suspects that he or she may be the victim of fraud, including identity theft, may ask nationwide consumer reporting agencies to place initial fraud alerts in his or her consumer reports. These alerts must remain in the consumer's report for no less than ninety days. In addition, members of the armed services who are called to active duty may request that active duty alerts be placed in their consumer reports. Active duty alerts must remain in these service members' files for no less than twelve months.

Section 605A(h)(1)(B) requires users of consumer reports, including financial institutions, to verify a consumer's identity if a consumer report includes a fraud or active duty alert. Unless the financial institution uses reasonable policies and procedures to form a reasonable belief that it knows the identity of the person making the request, the financial institution may not

- Establish a new credit plan or extension of credit (other than under an open-end credit plan) in the name of the consumer,
- Issue an additional card on an existing account, or
- Increase a credit limit.

Extended Alerts

Consumers who allege that they are the victim of identity theft may also place an extended alert, which lasts seven years, on their consumer report. Extended alerts require consumers to submit identity theft reports and appropriate proof of identity to the nationwide consumer reporting agencies.

Section 605A(h)(2)(B) requires a financial institution that obtains a consumer report that contains an extended alert to contact the consumer in person, or by the method listed by the consumer in the alert, prior to taking any of the three actions listed above.

Information Available to Victims (FCRA, Section 609(e))

Section 609(e) requires financial institutions to provide records of fraudulent transactions to victims of identity theft within thirty days after receiving a request for the records. These records include the application and business transaction records under the control of the financial institution, whether maintained by the institution or another person on behalf of the institution (such as a service provider). This information should be provided to one of the following:

- The victim
- Any federal, state, or local government law enforcement agency or officer specified by the victim in the request
- Any law enforcement agency investigating the identity theft that was authorized by the victim to take receipt of these records

The request for the records must be made by the victim in writing and must be sent to the financial institution to the address specified by the institution for this purpose. The financial institution may ask the victim to provide information, if known, regarding the date of the transaction or application and any other identifying information, such as an account or transaction number.

Unless the financial institution, at its discretion, otherwise has a high degree of confidence that it knows the identity of the victim making the request for information, before disclosing any information to the victim it must take prudent steps to positively identify the person requesting the information. Proof of identity can include any of the following:

- A government-issued identification card

- Personally identifying information of the same type that was provided to the financial institution by the unauthorized person
- Personally identifying information that the financial institution typically requests from new applicants or for new transactions

At the election of the financial institution, the victim must also provide the institution with proof of an identity theft complaint, which may consist of a copy of a police report evidencing the claim of identity theft and a properly completed affidavit. The affidavit may be either the standardized affidavit form prepared by the Federal Trade Commission (published in April 2005 in the Federal Register at 70 FR 21792) or an “affidavit of fact” that is acceptable to the financial institution for this purpose.

When these conditions are met, the financial institution must provide the information at no charge to the victim. However, the institution is not required to provide any information if, acting in good faith, it determines that

- Section 609(e) does not require disclosure of the information;
- It does not have a high degree of confidence in knowing the true identity of the requestor, based on the identification and/or proof provided;
- The request for information is based on a misrepresentation of fact by the requestor; or
- The information requested is Internet navigational data or similar information about a person’s visit to a web site or online service.

Duties of Card Issuers Regarding Changes of Address (FCRA, Section 615(e)(1)(c) and Regulation V, Section 222.91)

Background

Section 615(e)(1)(C) of the Fair Credit Reporting Act requires the federal banking agencies (agencies) and the Federal Trade Commission to prescribe regulations for debit and credit card issuers regarding the assessment of the validity of address changes for existing accounts. The regulations require card issuers to have procedures to assess the validity of an address change if the card issuer receives a notice of change of address for an existing account, and within a short period of time (during at least the first 30 days) receives a request for an additional or replacement card for the same account. On November 9, 2007, the agencies published final rules in the Federal Register (72 FR 63718) implementing this section.

Definitions (12 CFR 222.91(b))

The following definitions pertain to the rules governing the duties of card issuers regarding changes of address:

1. A cardholder is a consumer who has been issued a credit or debit card.
2. Clear and conspicuous means reasonably understandable and designed to call attention to the nature and significance of the information presented.

Address Validation Requirements (12 CFR 222.91(c))

A card issuer must establish and implement policies and procedures to assess the validity of a change of address if it receives notification of a change of address for a consumer’s debit or credit card account and, within a short period of time afterwards (during at least the first 30 days after it receives such notification), the card issuer receives a request for an additional or replacement card for the same account. In such situations, the card issuer must not issue an additional or replacement card until it assesses the validity of the change of address in accordance with its policies and procedures.

The policies and procedures must provide that the card issuer will

- 1a. Notify the cardholder of the request for an additional or replacement card
  - (i) At the cardholder’s former address, or
  - (ii) By any other means of communication that the card issuer and the cardholder have previously agreed to use, and
- 1b. Provide to the cardholder a reasonable means of promptly reporting incorrect address changes, or
2. Assess the validity of the change of address according to the procedures the card issuer has established as a part of its Identity Theft Prevention Program (12 CFR 222.90).

Alternative Timing of Address Validation (12 CFR 222.91(d))

A card issuer may satisfy the requirements of these rules prior to receiving any request for an additional or replacement card by validating an address (by one of the methods in 12 CFR 222.91(c) when it receives an address change notification.

provides to satisfy these rules must be clear and conspicuous and provided separately from its regular correspondence with the cardholder.

Form of Notice (12 CFR 222.91(e))

Any written or electronic notice that a card issuer

Examination Procedures

Fraud and Active Duty Alerts (FCRA, Section 605A(h))

1. Determine whether the financial institution has effective policies and procedures in place to verify the identity of consumers in situations in which consumer reports include fraud and/or active duty military alerts.
2. Determine if the financial institution has effective policies and procedures in place to contact consumers in situations in which consumer reports include extended alerts.
3. If procedural weaknesses or other risks requiring further investigation are noted, review a sample of transactions in which consumer reports including these types of alerts were obtained. Verify that the financial institution complied with the identity verification and/or consumer contact requirements.

Information Available to Victims (FCRA, Section 609(e))

1. Review financial institution policies, procedures, and/or practices to determine whether identities and claims of fraudulent transactions are verified and whether information is properly disclosed to victims of identity theft and/or appropriately authorized law enforcement agents.
2. If procedural weaknesses or other risks requiring further investigation are noted, review a sample of requests of these types to determine whether the financial institution properly verified the requestor's identity prior to disclosing the information.

Duties of Card Issuers Regarding Changes of Address (FCRA, Section 615(e))

1. Verify that the card issuer has policies and procedures to assess the validity of a change of address if
  - It receives notification of a change of address for a consumer's debit or credit card account; and

- Within a short period of time afterwards (during at least the first 30 days after it receives such notification), the card issuer receives a request for an additional or replacement card for the same account (12 CFR 222.91(c)).
2. Determine whether the policies and procedures prevent the card issuer from issuing additional or replacement cards until it
    - Notifies the cardholder at the cardholder's former address or by any other means previously agreed to and provides the cardholder a reasonable means to promptly report an incorrect address change (12 CFR 222.91(c)(1)(i)-(ii)); or
    - Assesses the validity of the address change in accordance with its procedures established under its Identity Theft Prevention Program (12 CFR 222.91(c)(2)).

In the alternative, a card issuer may validate a change of address request when it is received, using the above methods, prior to receiving any request for an additional or replacement card (12 CFR 222.91(d)).

3. Determine whether any written or electronic notice sent to cardholders for purposes of validating a change of address request is clear and conspicuous and is provided separately from any regular correspondence with the cardholder (12 CFR 222.91(e)).
4. If procedural weaknesses or other risks requiring further information are noted, obtain a sample of notifications from cardholders of changes of address and requests for additional or replacement cards to determine whether the card issuer complied with the regulatory requirement to evaluate the validity of the notice of address change before issuing additional or replacement cards.

Conclusion: On the basis of examination procedures completed, form a conclusion about whether a card issuer's policies and procedures effectively meet regulatory requirements for evaluating the validity of change of address requests received in connection with credit or debit card accounts.
