As if the unemployment rate isn't high enough. The government should take more income from the hard working American. Let's see so by cutting the average Loan Originators income in half would simply increase the unemployment rate (this will help stimulate the economy). Who is making these decisions...Oh yes, those with sound 6 figure incomes who are not at jeopardy of a paycut. Sounds like a great plan to me. Just kick those of us still working hard to make an honest living in an already struggling economy. I hope that you can look at the big picture from the common persons view. Why on earth do you want to add to mess our country is already in? Maybe the government should gather a panel of folks that are in the grind of this mess day in and day out for some helpful advise that just might make things better not worse. Novel idea...I am asking those of you in control of my familys future to think twice about putting this rule into affect. I will hurt more American people than it will help.
